Tells About Shakedown For$81,500

Former Magistrate Says McCormack Held Up Tex Rickard for Cash on Title Fight

Describes Return

Testimony Brings Out Giant Owner Made Protest

New York, Jan. 31 (AP)—The closing page of New York state's probe of waterfront crime today contained a former magistrate's story of an alleged $81,500 shakedown on the Dempsey-Firpo fight by a millionaire shipping industrailist.

The account, given yesterday by former Magistrate Francis X. McQuade, represented a clear contradiction of statements made the previous day by the industrialist, William McCormack, who denied the alleged extortion.

McQuade's testimony rivaled in interest that of Joseph P. Ryan, president of the AFL International Longshoremen's Association (ILA), one of the chief centers around which the months-long state inquiry revolved.

Impossible, He Says

Ryan wound up his own witness stand appearance with a statement, among many other assertions, that it is possible that 30 per cent of his union's officials have police records.

After Ryan and then McQuade concluded their testimony yesterday, the State Commission adjourned its public hearings seeking to bring into the open rackets which allegedly take 350 million dollars a year from the seven billion dollar shipping industry here. The commission's primary aim is to expose conditions to public scrutiny and to make legislative recommendations.

Commission Counsel Theodore Kiendl said new evidence uncovered in the public hearings of the past two weeks might lead to further sessions on the shadowy life in the world's greatest harbor.

McQuade, 75-year-old former treasurer of the New York Giants, left a sick bed to go before the commission and swear he forced McCormack to return the $81,500 allegedly extorted from the late fight promoter, Tex Rickard.

The memorable heavyweight championship fight in 1923 was held at the Polo Grounds, the ball park of the New York Giants. Jack Dempsey was knocked out of the ring but came back to knock out Louis Firpo.

Denied He Got Money

McCormack, who was then state athletic commissioner, testified on Thursday and denied ever receiving the money from Rickard.

In his testimony yesterday, McQuade quoted the Giants' late owner, Charles A. Stoneham, as saying the fight would not be licensed unless Rickard turned over $81,500 to McCormack. The witness asserted that Stoneham said McCormack had no right to do this.

After the bout, McQuade went on, he called McCormack into his magistrate's chambers and "demanded that he return to me within two hours the $81,500 which he received from Tex Rickard."

Says He Brought It

McQuade testified that McCormack said nothing, left the room and returned in two hours with the money.

McQuade asserted that he gave the money to Stoneham. McCormack resigned from the State Athletic Commission about four months later.

Legal authorities said last night that the Statute of Limitations would prevent any prosecution in the alleged extortion. However, the Manhattan district attorney's office was reported checking into the possibilities of perjury in the

Driverless Vehicle Plunges Into Porch

A 1949 sedan owned by Joseph Verderber of Box 83, Flat Road, Athens, which he had parked near 213 Hasbrouck avenue, started up and rolled a short distance down Hasbrouck avenue, jumped the curb and plunged into the front porch of a house owned by Mrs. Rose Eichhorn at 194 Hasbrouck avenue early last night, police reported.

No one was home at the time, Mrs. Eichhorn having gone visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Demskie, 115 First avenue. Neighbors telephoned her there at approximately 8:30 p. m. shortly after the accident.

The car was reported to have struck the concrete railing of the porch but the house itself "was not damaged." The concrete railing was reported to have been slightly damaged.

Officers Norton and O'Rourke, who investigated, reported that a fence owned by Epraim Schabot of 31 Maple street was also damaged by the car.

Death of Woman Leads to Arrest of Man on ABC Count

Accord Resident Is Held After Harriet Mason Is Found on Road After Drinking

A man accused of selling alcoholic beverage to a Granite woman later found dead along the road near her home has been jailed for an ABC law violation.

Austin Lyons, 69, of Accord, was arrested as a result of the investigation of the death on Wednesday of Harriet Lee Mason Martin, 40, of RD 1, Kerhonkson. The charge—that of selling alcoholic beverages without a license—does not involve Lyons directly in the death, however.

Investigation by state police of Ellenville under Cpl. Jack Regan along with District Attorney Howard C. St. John and his assistant, James J. Abernethy, into the circumstances surrounding the Martin woman's death resulted Friday afternoon in the disclosure by state police that the deceased woman had been drinking at the Lyons place prior to her death.

On Probation

Alleging that Lyons was not licensed to sell alcoholic beverages, Cpl. Regan learned he was at the time on probation from a previous similar charge Taken before Justice of the Peace Percy Gazlay, Lyons was permitted to plead innocent to the new charge and was granted a hearing at a date to be set. Justice Gazlay, however, revoked the probation on the old conviction with the result that Lyons was sent to the Ulster County Jail to serve out 30 days of the former sentence.

Cause of the death of the 40-year-old Granite woman still remains officially uncertain, pending a final report from the state police laboratory. At present, there is nothing to indicate homicide involved in her death.

Says U. S. Vitally Alert Regarding Way of Cooperation of Nations

Rome, Jan. 31 (AP) — President Eisenhower's new secretary of state arrived in Europe today and made clear within 10 minutes that the United States wants to know what Europe is doing about unification for defense.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles hinted broadly again along the lines of the warning in his first U. S. radio speech a week ago. He said then that the United States might re-shape its aid policy toward western Europe if the nations refuse to unite. Today he put it this way:

"I am not here to preach or talk but to listen and learn, so that our government may make its decisions wisely with regard to the direction in which you, yourselves, are going."

Although he said he came to listen, he went to conferences with Prime Minister Alcide De Gasperi and his government only after making plain what subject he wanted to hear about.

"The European defense community," he told reporters, "has caught the imagination of the American people.

U. S. People Concerned

"The United States government and people have come to look upon this plan as a vital part of the overall program for cooperation between nations of the Atlantic Pact community.

"We are particularly interested in learning what progress we can anticipate in the European Defense community plan."

As far as Italy is concerned, it was clear Prime Minister DeGasperi and his government will agree with Dulles. Italy wants action on the plan, too, and wants to know why some other nations are lagging in their interest.

Expect Hard Going

The secretary of state, ad U. S. Mutual Security Chief Harold E. Stassen, who is accompanying him, expect to find harder going later along their 10-day tour of seven west-European capitals.

Authority Says Thruway Done or Near It in Spring

Albany, Jan. 31 (AP)—The State Thruway Authority predicted today it would have the entire New York - to - Buffalo superhighway completed or under construction next spring.

In its third annual report to Gov. Dewey and the Legislature, the authority also reiterated that the entire 427-mile route would be opened to the public late in 1954, "barring further serious deterioration of the international situation."

The 79-page report from the three-member authority also announced:

1. A proposed speed limit of 60 miles per hour on the 500 million dollar superhighway. In previous statements, the authority had stressed that the road was "designed" for a 70 mph rate. But a spokesman said today no final decision had been reached.

2. The locations of 37 traffic interchanges on the New York-Buffalo section where tolls will be collected, and the sites of 14 "free" interchanges. The toll stations will be located between Williamsville in Erie county and Spring Valley in Rockland county.

3. As of last Dec. 31, a total of 234 miles of thruway and 248 bridges of various types were either finished or nearing completion. Completed highway totalled 55 miles. Contracts completed or underway last year totalled $186,231,981.

4. Negotiations with the New York Telephone Company for a thruway communications system, to include radio-telephone service along the entire route and telephone and teletypewriter service between thruway headquarters here and various local offices.

5. Authorization by the Thruway Authority to contract with a Brooklyn firm (Taller and Cooper) for manufacture of toll-collecting equipment.

The authority said it planned to lease various service facilities such as gasoline stations, garages and restaurants, to competing operators along the route, so that the "principle of free competition will be maintained and the best possible service and quality or product insured to the motorists."

Spot Check Due on Gold By Officials

To Weigh Some of Ore and Make Count in Several Vaults for Official Transfer

Nothing Is Wrong

Former Administration Is Praised for Exact Account System

Washington, Jan. 31 (AP) — The new Republican guardians of the country's assets are going to look at, heft and count some of those gold bars locked up at Fort Knox, Ky., and elsewhere.

There is no implication that anything is wrong with the accounts of the outgoing Democratic officials. Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey made that plain last night when he announced plans for the checkup, plans which former Secretary Snyder helped perfect.

The idea is just to make a spot check as part of the transfer to new custodians. Such a check, counting perhaps 10 per cent and weighing 1 per cent of the gold, and making a few assays, could be completed in a few months.

Would Take Longer

A complete count, the treasury estimated some time ago, would take two to three years.

The United States owns about 23 billion dollars in gold bullion and more than two billions in silver. About half the gold, enough to fill a 10-room house, is in Fort Knox. The rest is in San Francisco, Denver and Philadelphia mints, and Seattle and New York assay offices.

What will the inspecting party, headed by representatives of the former and present secretaries and the new treasurer, see?

The gold and silver is kept in room-size vaults, behind double doors, and double sealed. The seals are inspected weekly and again annually.

To Check Silver Too

Behind those doors the inspectors will see the gold and silver bars.

The gold, not pure but with a little copper added to keep it from being too soft, is in bars that weigh about 27½ pounds. Each bar is worth $14,000.

The silver bars weigh 68½ pounds and are worth $905 each, unless paper money has been issued against them. If they have been "monetized" by such issue they are revalued at $1,290 a bar.

The spot check of bullion, along with audits of currency, coin and government securities, was recommended by an advisory committee named jointly by Humphrey and Snyder.

Contradicts Truman On Red A-Bomb

Washington, Jan. 31 (AP) — Former President Truman's expression of doubt Monday that the Russians have a workable A-bomb got another official disclaimer yesterday, this time from the chief of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Said Gordon Dean: "There is no doubt of the existence of a supply of atomic weapons in the U.S.S.R."

Drunken Driver Is Fined $50 After Friday Collision

Arresting Officers Report Malden Man Almost Hits Police Car, Other Autos

Three cases of speeding and one of driving while intoxicated were disposed of this morning in city court.

John B. Wells, 32, of Malden-on-Hudson, arrested at 3:40 p. m. yesterday at Cornell and Broadway charged with driving while intoxicated, was fined $50 by Judge Raymond J. Mino and his license revoked.

Officers Harold DeGraff and Thomas W. Tomshaw, who made the arrest, reported that Wells, driving a 1952 sedan north on Broadway, was in collision with a 1950 sedan operated south on Broadway by Frank Louis Casciaro of 387 Clifton avenue. They said Casciaro was making a left turn into Cornell street at the time of the accident.

Were in Pursuit

The arresting officers were in pursuit of Wells at the time of the collision, they reported, Wells having narrowly missed striking the police car on Broadway near Pine Grove avenue. During the pursuit, the officers reported, the Wells car forced several other vehicles out of their line of travel.

The Casciaro vehicle was damaged about the right rear, it was reported, and the Wells car about the front bumper.

Maxine Stokely, 43, of Route 1, Box 347, Kingston, and Mary Hasbrouck, 25, of 20 Ann street, who, police said, were passengers in the Wells car, were arrested on charges of public intoxication. Judge Mino sentenced each to two days in jail, starting from the time of their arrest.

Speeding Cases Disposed

Albert P. Koster, Jr., of Route 1, Box 399, Stone Ridge, who was arrested at 12:30 a. m. today on Albany avenue near Roosevelt avenue by Officers Gaffney and Loeffler on a charge of speeding, forfeited $20 bail when he failed to appear this morning.

Edward Morris, 20, of 461 Washington avenue, arrested at Albany and Clinton avenues at 2:15 a. m. today on a charge of

Failed to Make Curve

Nancy Simmons, 20, of 168 Mill street, Poughkeepsie, received injuries to her scalp and nose about 2:10 a. m. today when the automobile in which she was riding failed to make the sharp curve at the approach to the Mid-Hudson Bridge near Highland and struck guard rails, state police of the Highland station reported. The driver, Wallace Letender, 25, of the same Poughkeepsie address, was uninjured, troopers said. He was issued a summons returnable today to answer a charge of driving without a license, according to the state police report.

Eisenhower Has Appointments for Conferences With Admiral Leahy and Banking Experts Concerning Plans for Future

Washington, Jan. 31 (AP)—President Eisenhower's appointments today with Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy and two congressional banking experts spurred speculation he plans major moves on Korea and economic controls.

The big question was: Is the administration planning a big step designed to bring the Korean war to a close?

Another, fed by Eisenhower's appointment with Sen. Capehart (R.-Ind.) and Rep. Wolcott (R.-Mich.), was: Will wage-price-materials controls be continued, be killed by executive order or be permitted to die a natural death on April 30?

Meetings Are Secret

The President called Leahy, World War 2 chief of staff to President Roosevelt and Truman, for a conference. White House aides would not disclose the purpose of the meeting.

Leahy has the same status in the navy that Gen. Douglas MacArthur has in the army. He is on active duty without assignment.

He is seeing the President one day before Admiral Arthur B. Radford, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet, returns to Washington. The navy announced Radford is due here Sunday and will remain for a week.

Highly placed sources yesterday said Eisenhower may "deneutralize" the island of Formosa by recalling the U. S. Seventh Fleet from patrol duty in the Straits of Formosa.

Speculation about developments in the Far East have been rife since Eisenhower, as President-elect, made his trip to Korea.

In advance of their parley with Eisenhower, Capehart and Wolcott agreed that present price-wage ceilings are no longer needed to fight inflation.

And they checked to Eisenhower whether these controls should be eliminated immediately by executive order or permitted to end April 30, when the present wage-price controls law expires.

Capehart and Wolcott told a reporter they had no recommendations to make on this question.

But they were in disagreement over giving Eisenhower standby power to clamp on controls after present ceilings are eliminated.

$800,000 Is Voted For New Inquiries

Graft, Red-Infiltration Are Among Probes Due for Checking

Washington, Jan. 31 (AP) — Investigating senators were financially equipped today to look for graft and communism in government and crime on the waterfronts, and to continue probing the State Department.

The Senate voted about $800,000 yesterday for the far flung inquiries, some of which could mean headaches for President Eisenhower and his official family.

Within an hour after the vote, Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) announced his special investigations subcommittee was on the trail of "mismanagement" in the files section of the State Department, and will give the case a public airing. His subcommittee was given $200,00 for the inquiry.

Jenner to Lead Hunt

McCarthy made public a letter to Secreary of State Dulles assuring him that the public hearings are not directed toward an investigation of communism or other subversive activities."

Chinese Nationals Decline Comment

Taipeh, Formosa, Jan. 31 (AP)—Official Chinese Nationalist quarters declined comment today on reports that President Eisenhower might release the U. S. Seventh Fleet from guarding the Formosa Strait.

It is expected that the Chinese Nationalist government will be informed in advance of any such decision. This was the case when former President Truman assigned the fleet to guard the strait on June 27, 1950.

From the Nationalist viewpoint, a release would be ideal if full-scale raids could be made on the Chinese mainland without losing United States protection in the event of counter-attacks on Formosa.

However, even if the guardian fleet were released, it would take some time before sizeable systematic raids could be made on the Communists.

Benedictine Hospital Gives Reports for Year Concluded

The annual meeting of the Benedictine Hospital was held this week at the hospital. Among the reports submitted were those of the President, Monsignor Drury; Superintendent, Sister Berenice; Director, School of Nursing, Sister Callista.

The president's report follows:

I am sure the staff joins with me in extending to the Sisters our sympathy on the passing of Sister Delphine. Her death is a great loss to the hospital and she will be missed tremendously. Sister has given many years of service, but not only Sister Delphine, all the Sisters of the Benedictine are making tremendous sacrifices to carry on this work. They receive no salary; there is no recompense for the work they do except reward from God. This work is done out of love of God and love of neighbor.

A great deal of the financing of the hospital is helped by the salary that would otherwise be paid to the Administrator, Director of Nurses, and each Sister employed; all goes back to the hospital finances to help pay its expenses.

Doctor Bush said a little while ago that not merely bricks and mortar make a hospital but the staff and the entire personnel. We are very grateful to the members of our staff for their services. I am sure the Doctors are proud of the new Benedictine hospital and its modern facilities.

It does take more than bricks and mortar and it takes more than a staff—it takes money. We never anticipated that the building would cost so much but as time went on we found one thing after another that had to be added until the debt reached $450,000. A New York bank holds this mortgage; we were able to get this mortgage through the Chancery office in New York without any difficulty. The interest is $27,000 annually. The important thing is to reduce the debt as quickly as it can be done.

Many other improvements should be made but we have postponed them on account of finances. How-

Eisenhower Plans Are Due Monday

Is MacArthur Way

President's Decision Is for Forcing Desire for Peace

Washington, Jan. 31 (AP)—President Eisenhower apparently is assured of strong support in Congress for his expected move opening the way for Nationalist forays from Formosa against the Communist China mainland.

Four authoritative officials told this reporter that—barring a last-minute change in plans — the President will announce in his State of the Union message Monday he is releasing the Seventh Fleet from its duty at Formosa.

This would wipe out a June 27, 1950, order by former President Truman under which the fleet has neutralized Formosa. It has stood by ready to defend Nationalist-held Formosa from attack and at the same time has prevented Chiang Kai-shek's forces from carrying out air and sea operations against the mainland.

One effect of the expected move would be to release Chiang's Nationalists for commando-type raids and possibly air strikes against the mainland.

Could Hamper Reds in Korea

This could draw off Chinese Communist troop strength from Korea and is regarded as Eisenhower's first step toward the administration's announced goal of making it unprofitable for the Reds to continue the struggle there.

Secretary of State Dulles, who left with Mutual Security Director Harold Stassen yesterday for a 10-day inspection tour of western Europe, put that goal into words in his televised speech last Tuesday:

"The enemy thinks he's getting an advantage by continuing the war. I believe Gen. Eisenhower will find the ways and means to make the enemy change his mind in that respect so that they too will want peace."

Eisenhower's reported decision to go ahead with the plan apparently represents a new and much tougher attitude toward the Chinese Reds than any the Truman administration was willing to risk.

Will Study Allies Reaction

The assumption in Congress was that America's allies had been—or were being—consulted and their reaction will be studied closely.

There was no advance word from the White House as to why Eisenhower called Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy to a conference there today (10:30 AES).

Leahy, like Gen. Douglas MacArthur, is on active duty without assignment. The admiral was World War II chief of staff to Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt and Truman.

He is seeing the President one day before Admiral Arthur B. Radford, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet, returns to Washington. The navy announced he is due Sunday, to remain for a week.

Advocated by MacArthur

Lomontville Bridge Out of Use in Crash

James F. Loughran, Ulster county superintendent of highways, reported this morning that Cantine's Bridge on the road from Lomontville to Atwood had been struck and damaged, apparently as the result of an automobile accident.

He was surveying the damage this morning and indicated it would be out of commission for some time. The sheriff's office was notified and County Investigator Arthur H. Brown is conducting an investigation.

State police of the Lake Katrine barrack are investigating another accident reported in the same general area. They revealed that someone called at 4 a. m. to report a slight accident and said his car struck some guard rails and that he would report more in detail later. Trooper E. J. Devine is investigating.

Former Administration Is Praised for Exact Account System

Washington, Jan. 31 (AP) — The new Republican guardians of the country's assets are going to look at, heft and count some of those gold bars locked up at Fort Knox, Ky., and elsewhere.

There is no implication that anything is wrong with the accounts of the outgoing Democratic officials. Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey made that plain last night when he announced plans for the checkup, plans which former Secretary Snyder helped perfect.

The idea is just to make a spot check as part of the transfer to new custodians. Such a check, counting perhaps 10 per cent and weighing 1 per cent of the gold, and making a few assays, could be completed in a few months.

Would Take Longer

A complete count, the treasury estimated some time ago, would take two to three years.

The United States owns about 23 billion dollars in gold bullion and more than two billions in silver. About half the gold, enough to fill a 10-room house, is in Fort Knox. The rest is in San Francisco, Denver and Philadelphia mints, and Seattle and New York assay offices.

What will the inspecting party, headed by representatives of the former and present secretaries and the new treasurer, see?

The gold and silver is kept in room-size vaults, behind double doors, and double sealed. The seals are inspected weekly and again annually.

To Check Silver Too

Behind those doors the inspectors will see the gold and silver bars.

The gold, not pure but with a little copper added to keep it from being too soft, is in bars that weigh about 27½ pounds. Each bar is worth $14,000.

The silver bars weigh 68½ pounds and are worth $905 each, unless paper money has been issued against them. If they have been "monetized" by such issue they are revalued at $1,290 a bar.

The spot check of bullion, along with audits of currency, coin and government securities, was recommended by an advisory committee named jointly by Humphrey and Snyder.

Contradicts Truman On Red A-Bomb

Washington, Jan. 31 (AP) — Former President Truman's expression of doubt Monday that the Russians have a workable A-bomb got another official disclaimer yesterday, this time from the chief of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Said Gordon Dean: "There is no doubt of the existence of a supply of atomic weapons in the U.S.S.R."

Arresting Officers Report Malden Man Almost Hits Police Car, Other Autos

Three cases of speeding and one of driving while intoxicated were disposed of this morning in city court.

John B. Wells, 32, of Malden-on-Hudson, arrested at 3:40 p. m. yesterday at Cornell and Broadway charged with driving while intoxicated, was fined $50 by Judge Raymond J. Mino and his license revoked.

Officers Harold DeGraff and Thomas W. Tomshaw, who made the arrest, reported that Wells, driving a 1952 sedan north on Broadway, was in collision with a 1950 sedan operated south on Broadway by Frank Louis Casciaro of 387 Clifton avenue. They said Casciaro was making a left turn into Cornell street at the time of the accident.

Were in Pursuit

The arresting officers were in pursuit of Wells at the time of the collision, they reported, Wells having narrowly missed striking the police car on Broadway near Pine Grove avenue. During the pursuit, the officers reported, the Wells car forced several other vehicles out of their line of travel.

The Casciaro vehicle was damaged about the right rear, it was reported, and the Wells car about the front bumper.

Maxine Stokely, 43, of Route 1, Box 347, Kingston, and Mary Hasbrouck, 25, of 20 Ann street, who, police said, were passengers in the Wells car, were arrested on charges of public intoxication. Judge Mino sentenced each to two days in jail, starting from the time of their arrest.

Speeding Cases Disposed

Albert P. Koster, Jr., of Route 1, Box 399, Stone Ridge, who was arrested at 12:30 a. m. today on Albany avenue near Roosevelt avenue by Officers Gaffney and Loeffler on a charge of speeding, forfeited $20 bail when he failed to appear this morning.

Edward Morris, 20, of 461 Washington avenue, arrested at Albany and Clinton avenues at 2:15 a. m. today on a charge of

Failed to Make Curve

Nancy Simmons, 20, of 168 Mill street, Poughkeepsie, received injuries to her scalp and nose about 2:10 a. m. today when the automobile in which she was riding failed to make the sharp curve at the approach to the Mid-Hudson Bridge near Highland and struck guard rails, state police of the Highland station reported. The driver, Wallace Letender, 25, of the same Poughkeepsie address, was uninjured, troopers said. He was issued a summons returnable today to answer a charge of driving without a license, according to the state police report.

Eisenhower Has Appointments for Conferences With Admiral Leahy and Banking Experts Concerning Plans for Future

Washington, Jan. 31 (AP)—President Eisenhower's appointments today with Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy and two congressional banking experts spurred speculation he plans major moves on Korea and economic controls.

The big question was: Is the administration planning a big step designed to bring the Korean war to a close?

Another, fed by Eisenhower's appointment with Sen. Capehart (R.-Ind.) and Rep. Wolcott (R.-Mich.), was: Will wage-price-materials controls be continued, be killed by executive order or be permitted to die a natural death on April 30?

Meetings Are Secret

The President called Leahy, World War 2 chief of staff to President Roosevelt and Truman, for a conference. White House aides would not disclose the purpose of the meeting.

Leahy has the same status in the navy that Gen. Douglas MacArthur has in the army. He is on active duty without assignment.

He is seeing the President one day before Admiral Arthur B. Radford, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet, returns to Washington. The navy announced Radford is due here Sunday and will remain for a week.

Highly placed sources yesterday said Eisenhower may "deneutralize" the island of Formosa by recalling the U. S. Seventh Fleet from patrol duty in the Straits of Formosa.

Speculation about developments in the Far East have been rife since Eisenhower, as President-elect, made his trip to Korea.

In advance of their parley with Eisenhower, Capehart and Wolcott agreed that present price-wage ceilings are no longer needed to fight inflation.

And they checked to Eisenhower whether these controls should be eliminated immediately by executive order or permitted to end April 30, when the present wage-price controls law expires.

Capehart and Wolcott told a reporter they had no recommendations to make on this question.

But they were in disagreement over giving Eisenhower standby power to clamp on controls after present ceilings are eliminated.

Graft, Red-Infiltration Are Among Probes Due for Checking

Washington, Jan. 31 (AP) — Investigating senators were financially equipped today to look for graft and communism in government and crime on the waterfronts, and to continue probing the State Department.

The Senate voted about $800,000 yesterday for the far flung inquiries, some of which could mean headaches for President Eisenhower and his official family.

Within an hour after the vote, Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) announced his special investigations subcommittee was on the trail of "mismanagement" in the files section of the State Department, and will give the case a public airing. His subcommittee was given $200,00 for the inquiry.

Jenner to Lead Hunt

McCarthy made public a letter to Secreary of State Dulles assuring him that the public hearings are not directed toward an investigation of communism or other subversive activities."

The Senate voted $219,000 to the Internal Security Subcommittee headed by Sen. Jenner (R-Ind.), who announced he expected

Chinese Nationals Decline Comment

Taipeh, Formosa, Jan. 31 (AP)—Official Chinese Nationalist quarters declined comment today on reports that President Eisenhower might release the U. S. Seventh Fleet from guarding the Formosa Strait.

It is expected that the Chinese Nationalist government will be informed in advance of any such decision. This was the case when former President Truman assigned the fleet to guard the strait on June 27, 1950.

From the Nationalist viewpoint, a release would be ideal if full-scale raids could be made on the Chinese mainland without losing United States protection in the event of counter-attacks on Formosa.

However, even if the guardian fleet were released, it would take some time before sizeable systematic raids could be made on the Communists.

Benedictine Hospital Gives Reports for Year Concluded

The annual meeting of the Benedictine Hospital was held this week at the hospital. Among the reports submitted were those of the President, Monsignor Drury; Superintendent, Sister Berenice; Director, School of Nursing, Sister Callista.

The president's report follows:

I am sure the staff joins with me in extending to the Sisters our sympathy on the passing of Sister Delphine. Her death is a great loss to the hospital and she will be missed tremendously. Sister has given many years of service, but not only Sister Delphine, all the Sisters of the Benedictine are making tremendous sacrifices to carry on this work. They receive no salary; there is no recompense for the work they do except reward from God. This work is done out of love of God and love of neighbor.

A great deal of the financing of the hospital is helped by the salary that would otherwise be paid to the Administrator, Director of Nurses, and each Sister employed; all goes back to the hospital finances to help pay its expenses.

Doctor Bush said a little while ago that not merely bricks and mortar make a hospital but the staff and the entire personnel. We are very grateful to the members of our staff for their services. I am sure the Doctors are proud of the new Benedictine hospital and its modern facilities.

It does take more than bricks and mortar and it takes more than a staff—it takes money. We never anticipated that the building would cost so much but as time went on we found one thing after another that had to be added until the debt reached $450,000. A New York bank holds this mortgage; we were able to get this mortgage through the Chancery office in New York without any difficulty. The interest is $27,000 annually. The important thing is to reduce the debt as quickly as it can be done.

Many other improvements should be made but we have postponed them on account of finances. How-

Eisenhower Plans Are Due Monday

Is MacArthur Way

President's Decision Is for Forcing Desire for Peace

Washington, Jan. 31 (AP)—President Eisenhower apparently is assured of strong support in Congress for his expected move opening the way for Nationalist forays from Formosa against the Communist China mainland.

Four authoritative officials told this reporter that—barring a last-minute change in plans — the President will announce in his State of the Union message Monday he is releasing the Seventh Fleet from its duty at Formosa.

This would wipe out a June 27, 1950, order by former President Truman under which the fleet has neutralized Formosa. It has stood by ready to defend Nationalist-held Formosa from attack and at the same time has prevented Chiang Kai-shek's forces from carrying out air and sea operations against the mainland.

One effect of the expected move would be to release Chiang's Nationalists for commando-type raids and possibly air strikes against the mainland.

Could Hamper Reds in Korea

This could draw off Chinese Communist troop strength from Korea and is regarded as Eisenhower's first step toward the administration's announced goal of making it unprofitable for the Reds to continue the struggle there.

Secretary of State Dulles, who left with Mutual Security Director Harold Stassen yesterday for a 10-day inspection tour of western Europe, put that goal into words in his televised speech last Tuesday:

"The enemy thinks he's getting an advantage by continuing the war. I believe Gen. Eisenhower will find the ways and means to make the enemy change his mind in that respect so that they too will want peace."

Eisenhower's reported decision to go ahead with the plan apparently represents a new and much tougher attitude toward the Chinese Reds than any the Truman administration was willing to risk.

Will Study Allies Reaction

The assumption in Congress was that America's allies had been—or were being—consulted and their reaction will be studied closely.

There was no advance word from the White House as to why Eisenhower called Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy to a conference there today (10:30 AES).

Leahy, like Gen. Douglas MacArthur, is on active duty without assignment. The admiral was World War II chief of staff to Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt and Truman.

He is seeing the President one day before Admiral Arthur B. Radford, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet, returns to Washington. The navy announced he is due Sunday, to remain for a week.

Advocated by MacArthur

Lomontville Bridge Out of Use in Crash

James F. Loughran, Ulster county superintendent of highways, reported this morning that Cantine's Bridge on the road from Lomontville to Atwood had been struck and damaged, apparently as the result of an automobile accident.

He was surveying the damage this morning and indicated it would be out of commission for some time. The sheriff's office was notified and County Investigator Arthur H. Brown is conducting an investigation.

State police of the Lake Katrine barrack are investigating another accident reported in the same general area. They revealed that someone called at 4 a. m. to report a slight accident and said his car struck some guard rails and that he would report more in detail later. Trooper E. J. Devine is investigating.

Your Life and Mine

THE REAL RICHES

Most of us are richer than we realize. I don't mean that we have a lot of money hidden in a sock or tucked away in a bureau drawer that we have forgotten about. Most of us know where our money is—or isn't. That is especially true at this time of the year when our uncle who always attires himself in red, white and blue will soon demand to know how we earned our money and how much of it we have had and all the rest.

What I mean is that the real riches are made up of blessings that cannot be entered on any income tax blank. I think it was Thoreau who said that a man can be rich either in the abundance of his possessions or the fewness of his wants. Some wag has defined depression as "that period when people do without what their parents never had." Some of the most depressed people in the world are to be found in the best of material circumstances. And some of those who are radiantly happy, having discovered the great secret of abundant life, hardly have a nickel to their name.

The folks who have a great view of life as a wonderful privilege of daily service to God and to their fellowmen, and who have eyes that are keenly developed to discern the priceless blessings like health and friendship are the folk who are really wealthy.

I'm glad the sky is painted blue,
And the earth is painted green;
And such a lot of nice fresh air
Is sandwiched in between.

Somebody has suggested as a basis for a January inventory—equally pertinent for an evaluation during the other eleven as well—that we sit down and "have a think" about the things money can't buy. "Money can't buy friendship; it must be earned. Nor a clear conscience; square dealing is the price tag. Money can't buy good health; right living is the secret. It can't buy happiness; that is a mental attitude. Money can't buy sunsets, nor singing birds. They are as free as the air we breathe. Money can't buy inward peace; nor can it buy character. Make a list of your priceless possessions. You'll find you are as rich as Rockefeller."

Ralph Waldo Emerson once tossed out the suggestion in one of his lectures that we have a moral obligation to do all we can to keep the man who has a lot of the stuff that can be hidden in a sock or stacked up in a bank from making the sad mistake of thinking that he has real riches. "I ought not to allow any man," said Emerson, "because he has broad lands, to feel that he is rich in my presence. I ought to make him feel that I can do without his riches, that I cannot be bought — neither by comfort, neither by pride,—and though I be utterily penniless, and receiving bread from him, that he is the poor man beside me."

Stang to Address Presbyterians at Sunday's Service

For God and Country will be the subject of message by Frederick H. Stang, county attorney, at the service of worship Sunday, at 11 a. m., in the First Presbyterian Church, Elmendorf street and Tremper avenue, of which Stang is a trustee. Ward B. Tongue, deputy county clerk, and a teacher and ruling elder in the church, is to preside; and Chester A. Baltz, Jr., church school superintendent, will read the scripture lesson and offer a prayer of intercession. Under the direction of Miss Edna Merrihew, organist and choir director, the choir will sing the anthem, O Worship the King by Adams.

The pastor, the Rev. William J. McVey, and Casper Souers, a trustee and member of the adult choir, will be attending the fifth annual convention of the National Council of Presbyterian Men, at the Palmer House, Chicago, Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Souers is the elected delegate of North River Presbytery to the convention, which will be addressed by many outstanding national Christian leaders, among them the following, each of whom is a ruling elder in the Presbyterian Church of the U.S.A.:

Frank L. McCluer, president of Lindenwood College for Women, St. Charles, Mo., former president of Westminster College, Fulton, Mo., where he was host in 1946 to Winston Churchill who at that time delivered his famous Iron Curtain address; Frank M. Totten, vice-president of Chase National Bank and president of the YMCA's of New York; and Arthur B. Langlie, governor of the State of Washington, who is quoted as saying, "Democracy can succeed in only one way: by a spiritual revival and the carrying on of Christian principles."

More than 2,800 men from individual churches, presbyteries and synods throughout the nation are registered to attend the convention which will have as its theme, Come and See.

Holy Cross Names Officers for Year

The annual meeting of the Parish of the Church of the Holy Cross was held Jan. 25 in the parish hall. The report of the treasurer of the church was received along with the reports of the various parish organizations. A junior warden, William Robertson, was elected, and three new vestrymen, Henry Paul, Jr., Vogel Gettier, Donald Cashdollar. Frank Barnes, Sr., was elected to fill out the unexpired term of Frederick Kock who resigned because of illness. Because of his long and faithful service to the church Koch was elected honorary vestryman of the church. Minas Manasian was elected to the vacancy created by the election of Robertson to the office of junior warden.

At the meeting of the vestry for the organization of the vestry, Arthur Kurtznacher was elected clerk of the vestry, William Robertson was elected treasurer and Harry Hines, Jr., was elected recording secretary.

It requires an investment of about $8,000 to create a job in a manufacturing plant.

"What Do You Mean— Only ONE True Church?"

Non-Catholics often resent the claim that the Catholic Church alone is the true Church of Christ.

"You Catholics," some of them say, "have a lot of nerve. The Church is universal. Anybody can belong to it who accepts Christ as his personal Savior and models his life after Christ's teaching. We can be members of the true Church without being Catholics."

Many who feel this way about it are, of course, sincere and devout people. And it is not our intention to challenge the various shades of Christian thought which they represent. We do ask them, however to understand that the Catholic claim is not a matter of arrogance or intolerance—but of the deepest religious conviction.

Nearly all Christians agree that there can be only one true Church. Yet there are hundreds of different denominations—some of them miles apart in what they teach—all claiming to be the true Church. Certainly all of them cannot be right... in fact, only ONE can.

But which one? How can we identify it?

The Son of God made Himself recognizable to men by coming upon the earth with a body and soul like ours. It was in His physical body that He died for our redemption. Having thus so carefully revealed Himself to the people of His own time, would He not make equally sure that future generations should also know Him?

Catholics believe that the Savior did so, through the Church... in which he is "able at all times to save those who came to God through Him." The Church is, therefore, not merely a body of people believing in Christ... but the Body appointed by Christ Himself to continue His mission of redemption.

"He who hears you," the Savior said, "hears Me." For Catholics, this means that when the Church speaks it is Christ speaking. When the Church offers prayer and sacrifice and forgiveness of sins, it is Christ's prayer and sacrifice and forgiveness of sins. The Church, as Catholics see it, is Christ living in the world today!

Must the Church be an organized system? Is the Church invisible? Is it composed of saints and sinners? Can we reject the Church without rejecting Christ? Must I belong to the Catholic church to be saved? The answer to these and many other important questions is available in a pamphlet which we will send you without cost or obligation—which you can read in the privacy of your home. Write today... Your Life and Mine

Most of us are richer than we realize. I don't mean that we have a lot of money hidden in a sock or tucked away in a bureau drawer that we have forgotten about. Most of us know where our money is—or isn't. That is especially true at this time of the year when our uncle who always attires himself in red, white and blue will soon demand to know how we earned our money and how much of it we have had and all the rest.

What I mean is that the real riches are made up of blessings that cannot be entered on any income tax blank. I think it was Thoreau who said that a man can be rich either in the abundance of his possessions or the fewness of his wants. Some wag has defined depression as "that period when people do without what their parents never had." Some of the most depressed people in the world are to be found in the best of material circumstances. And some of those who are radiantly happy, having discovered the great secret of abundant life, hardly have a nickel to their name.

The folks who have a great view of life as a wonderful privilege of daily service to God and to their fellowmen, and who have eyes that are keenly developed to discern the priceless blessings like health and friendship are the folk who are really wealthy.

I'm glad the sky is painted blue,
And the earth is painted green;
And such a lot of nice fresh air
Is sandwiched in between.

Somebody has suggested as a basis for a January inventory—equally pertinent for an evaluation during the other eleven as well—that we sit down and "have a think" about the things money can't buy. "Money can't buy friendship; it must be earned. Nor a clear conscience; square dealing is the price tag. Money can't buy good health; right living is the secret. It can't buy happiness; that is a mental attitude. Money can't buy sunsets, nor singing birds. They are as free as the air we breathe. Money can't buy inward peace; nor can it buy character. Make a list of your priceless possessions. You'll find you are as rich as Rockefeller."

Ralph Waldo Emerson once tossed out the suggestion in one of his lectures that we have a moral obligation to do all we can to keep the man who has a lot of the stuff that can be hidden in a sock or stacked up in a bank from making the sad mistake of thinking that he has real riches. "I ought not to allow any man," said Emerson, "because he has broad lands, to feel that he is rich in my presence. I ought to make him feel that I can do without his riches, that I cannot be bought — neither by comfort, neither by pride,—and though I be utterily penniless, and receiving bread from him, that he is the poor man beside me."

Tongue, deputy county clerk, and a teacher and ruling elder in the church, is to preside; and Chester A. Baltz, Jr., church school superintendent, will read the scripture lesson and offer a prayer of intercession. Under the direction of Miss Edna Merrihew, organist and choir director, the choir will sing the anthem, O Worship the King by Adams.

The pastor, the Rev. William J. McVey, and Casper Souers, a trustee and member of the adult choir, will be attending the fifth annual convention of the National Council of Presbyterian Men, at the Palmer House, Chicago, Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Souers is the elected delegate of North River Presbytery to the convention, which will be addressed by many outstanding national Christian leaders, among them the following, each of whom is a ruling elder in the Presbyterian Church of the U.S.A.:

Frank L. McCluer, president of Lindenwood College for Women, St. Charles, Mo., former president of Westminster College, Fulton, Mo., where he was host in 1946 to Winston Churchill who at that time delivered his famous Iron Curtain address; Frank M. Totten, vice-president of Chase National Bank and president of the YMCA's of New York; and Arthur B. Langlie, governor of the State of Washington, who is quoted as saying, "Democracy can succeed in only one way: by a spiritual revival and the carrying on of Christian principles."

More than 2,800 men from individual churches, presbyteries and synods throughout the nation are registered to attend the convention which will have as its theme, Come and See.

Holy Cross Names Officers for Year

The annual meeting of the Parish of the Church of the Holy Cross was held Jan. 25 in the parish hall. The report of the treasurer of the church was received along with the reports of the various parish organizations. A junior warden, William Robertson, was elected, and three new vestrymen, Henry Paul, Jr., Vogel Gettier, Donald Cashdollar. Frank Barnes, Sr., was elected to fill out the unexpired term of Frederick Kock who resigned because of illness. Because of his long and faithful service to the church Koch was elected honorary vestryman of the church. Minas Manasian was elected to the vacancy created by the election of Robertson to the office of junior warden.

At the meeting of the vestry for the organization of the vestry, Arthur Kurtznacher was elected clerk of the vestry, William Robertson was elected treasurer and Harry Hines, Jr., was elected recording secretary.

"What Do You Mean—Only ONE True Church?"

Non-Catholics often resent the claim that the Catholic Church alone is the true Church of Christ.

"You Catholics," some of them say, "have a lot of nerve. The Church is universal. Anybody can belong to it who accepts Christ as his personal Savior and models his life after Christ's teaching. We can be members of the true Church without being Catholics."

Many who feel this way about it are, of course, sincere and devout people. And it is not our intention to challenge the various shades of Christian thought which they represent. We do ask them, however to understand that the Catholic claim is not a matter of arrogance or intolerance—but of the deepest religious conviction.

Nearly all Christians agree that there can be only one true Church. Yet there are hundreds of different denominations—some of them miles apart in what they teach—all claiming to be the true Church. Certainly all of them cannot be right...in fact, only ONE can.

But which one? How can we identify it?

The Son of God made Himself recognizable to men by coming upon the earth with a body and soul like ours. It was in His physical body that He died for our redemption. Having thus so carefully revealed Himself to the people of His own time, would He not make equally sure that future generations should also know Him?

Catholics believe that the Savior did so, through the Church...in which he is "able at all times to save those who came to God through Him." The Church is, therefore, not merely a body of people believing in Christ...but the Body appointed by Christ Himself to continue His mission of redemption.

"He who hears you," the Savior said, "hears Me." For Catholics, this means that when the Church speaks it is Christ speaking. When the Church offers prayer and sacrifice and forgiveness of sins, it is Christ's prayer and sacrifice and forgiveness of sins. The Church, as Catholics see it, is Christ living in the world today!

Queens DA Indicted For Accepting Fees

New York, Jan. 31 (AP)—Queens District Attorney T. Vincent Quinn has been indicted on additional charges of accepting fees for representing clients before federal agencies while a member of Congress.

Named with Quinn yesterday by a Brooklyn federal grand jury were his two former law partners, James D. Saver and Martin Schwaeber. The 10-count indictment accuses them of illegally accepting fees totaling $13,600 from four clients.

Quinn, who has denied similar charges in an eight-count indictment, termed the latest accusations "another step in the continued political persecution."

Yesterday's indictment charged Quinn and his former associates of accepting fees of $3,500 from Peter Kustuk, duck farm operator at Riverhead, N. Y.; $5,000 from J. Vincent O'Shea of Babylon, N. Y., and other amounts from other clients.

Quinn, 49, was a Democratic member of the House of Representatives from the Queens Fifth District from 1949 through 1951.

Mrs. Sember was taken to the hospital by ambulance where she was found to have a dislocated right shoulder and a possible fracture of the collar bone.

Much Work Ahead

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 31 (AP)—Connecticut's General Assembly, controlled by Republicans, today had before it 2,332 bills which it must consider before adjournment in four months or so from now. Bills in piles were dumped on legislative clerks' desks before Friday's 5 p. m. deadline for new business. A week ago the number of bills introduced numbered a little more than 500. The remainder poured in during four days this week.

Alleged Victim Is Named in Papers Filed With OPS

Mineola, N. Y., Jan. 31 (AP)—The man who allegedly was victimized by three former Office of Price Stabilization aides accused of extortion was said in court yesterday to have been the subject of several complaints lodged with the OPS.

The statement came from Milton C. Meyer, of New York city, the OPS district deputy complaint inspector, as a defense witness in the trial of Seymour Chotiner, 29, of Mt. Vernon; Dennis O'Shea, 40, of Pleasantville, and William T. Holland, 36, of the Bronx.

The three are on trial in Nassau county court for allegedly taking a $1,200 payoff from awning salesman Garland L. Culpepper, Jr., to fix a price ceiling gouge case.

Chotiner, a former OPS attorney, was once legal adviser to Mt. Vernon's mayor. O'Shea and Holland are former OPS investigators.

Under questioning by Chotiner's attorney, former Nassau County District Attorney Edward J. Neary, Meyer told the court:

"We had some complaints against Culpepper last July, and I sent reports on him down to Washington headquarters to be studied. I also assigned O'Shea and Holland to interview Culpepper."

What action was taken in Washington, if any, was not revealed in the testimony.

Started With Used Car

The incident from which the present trial stems occurred in August.

Frank Rossi, of Fort Worth, Tex., a used car dealer visiting in the Bronx at the time, testified to some of the background.

He said he bought a 1952 Cadillac convertible from Culpepper last Aug. 4, paying $5,335, although Culpepper had asked $5,500.

Mayer testified the ceiling price for the car was $4,938.42.

Rossi said he protested the alleged overcharge to the OPS.

After the OPS men allegedly demanded that Culpepper pay them off, he went to the district attorney's office and was advised to make the payment in marked money.

Detectives arrested the three after the money allegedly changed hands in Culpepper's office here.

Another defense witness today was Rabbi Max Maccoby, of the Mt. Vernon Free Synagogue. The rabbi said he officiated at Chotinoff's wedding nine years ago and has always known the defendant as a man of excellent reputation.

The trial before Judge Norman F. Lent resumes Monday.

New Red Trial Denied

New York, Jan. 31 (AP)—A federal judge has denied all motions for a new trial asked by the 13 Communist leaders convicted on charges of conspiring to advocate the overthrow of the government by violence. Said Judge Edward J. Dimock yesterday: "I deny all motions. The discussions of these motions before me were very informative and threw a light on the weight of evidence against the defendants which I never had before." Defense lawyers for the 13 have been arguing new trial motions since Wednesday. Judge Dimock has set sentencing for Monday.

Heck Would Clean Up Bar and Bench

New York, Jan. 31 (AP)—Assembly Speaker Oswald D. Heck told the State Bar Association today it should "cleanse both bar and bench of those who bring discredit upon our institutions."

The Schenectady Republican noted that recent testimony before the State Crime Commission had brought "an avalanche of criticism" against the present system of selecting State Supreme Court justices in this state.

"Obviously a continuation of this criticism will result in destroying public confidence in the integrity and fairness of our courts, and something will have to be done," he said in a speech prepared for the annual luncheon of the judicial section of the Bar Association.

The speaker pointed out that several proposals were before the legislature to change the current methods of selecting and appointing judicial officers. He said "whether any of these bills will successfully weather the legislative barrage is a matter of question."

But he said the Bar Association would have to take drastic action or "an even more drastic" step would be taken by "other agencies."

Hawks Continue Upward Climb

(By The Associated Press)

The surprising Milwaukee Hawks are playing no favorites in their drive to climb out of the Western Division cellar in the NBA.

The Hawks, led by Mel Hutchins and Jack Nichols, defeated the Syracuse Nationals, 84-68, last night in the second game of a doubleheader at Milwaukee. The loss dropped Syracuse out of a first place tie with the New York Knickerbockers in the league's Eastern Division.

In the opener of the doubleheader, the Rochester Royals scored a 70-68 overtime victory over the Fort Wayne Pistons.

Hutchins scored 23 points and Nichols 21 as Milwaukee rolled to its eighth victory in its ten starts. The Hawks now are only a half game behind fourth-place Indianapolis in the Western Division.

Need Only Two More On Jean Parsons Jury

Wichita Falls, Tex., Jan. 31 (AP)—The tense testimony stage in the Mary Jean Parsons bridegroom murder trial was only two jurors away today.

After five days of questioning nearly 300 veniremen amid much bickering and sharp [illegible] between attorneys, ten men were in the jury box. Two were [illegible] yesterday.

Mrs. Parsons, 22, former University of Oklahoma coed and daughter of a prominent Tulsa, Okla., family, is charged with slaying her husband of a month, Army Lt. Richard O. Parsons, 24, of Pleasantville, N. Y. The fatal shooting occurred Feb. 16, 1952, in their El Paso apartment.

After she was found sane by an El Paso jury, the case was transferred here on a change of venue. Twice, through technical errors in choosing prospective jurors, the trial was postponed.

Saratoga Asks Two-Way Boost on Racing Tax

Ballston Spa, N. Y., Jan. 31 (AP)—Saratoga county, home of the nation's oldest thoroughbred horse racing track, is asking legislative permission for a two-way boost of its tax on pari-mutuel betting receipts.

The county board of supervisors yesterday asked the lawmakers to restore permission for a full 5 per cent county tax on receipts at flat tracks, and to extend the permission to cover betting at harness tracks.

Under present state law, counties containing thoroughbred tracks may tax pari-mutuel receipts through 1955, and the law then expires. The rate, originally 5 per cent, falls to 3 per cent this year, 2 per cent in 1954, and 1 per cent in 1955.

Highest Assessed Valuation

An Attractive Small Home

Rooms	Five
Bedrooms	Two
Closets	Seven
Cubage, House:	17,800 ft.
Garage	3,800 ft.
Dimensions	33' x 25'

Just about any type of exterior finish can be successfully used on "The General," thus leaving the home builder a wide variety of choice. Blinds, vertical wood strips painted a shade contrasting with that used for the rest of the exterior, a decorative front entry and blinds as used in the illustration—these are suggested as ways of brightening up the exterior appearance of this house.

Measuring 33' x 25', the house proper has a cubage of 17,800 feet. Cubage of the garage is 3800 feet while cubage of the porch or breezeway connecting the house and garage is 1000 feet.

Although small in size, the entry hall is sufficiently large to protect the living room from drafts caused by opening the front door and to also provide welcome storage space in the form of a good sized coat closet in the back wall.

Spacious, well lighted and pleasant, the living room has three windows in its front wall, looking out on the terrace. Long unbroken expanses along both the back and left walls facilitate the arrangement of large furniture pieces.

Connected directly with the living room, the dining room in "The General" takes the place of the breakfast area found in many modern homes. Ideally suited for family meals and also for more formal dinners, the small cheerful room is amply lighted and ventilated by one window in the back wall.

The lady of the house will appreciate the location of the kitchen right next to the dining room. Well planned and modernly equipped, the kitchen contains a generous amount of storage and counter space including an extra section of work counter extending from the stove to the large broom closet in the right front corner of the room.

To the home builder is left the decision as to how to use the porch or breezeway connecting the house and garage. If so desired, this porch can be completely enclosed and used as a first floor laundry or utility room. Direct access should be provided to the yard if this porchway is converted into a laundry.

The wealth of centrally located storage space also is certain to delight the lady of the house. Both bedrooms boast spacious closets. And, in addition to an unusually large linen closet, there are two all-purpose closets that open on the hallway connecting the bedrooms and the bath.

In the full cement basement of "The General" the home owner will find ample space for a recreation room, hobby shop, etc.; this will be especially true if the laundry is on the first floor of the house. The heating plant should, of course, be placed under the living room.

Blueprints Available

Complete plans and specifications for this house and all other "Home of the Week" designs are available at moderate cost. For plan prices, write to the Home Building Editor, Dept. 24, Kingston Daily Freeman and enclose a self-addressed, 3c stamped envelope. Allow 7 to 10 days for a reply.

Treatment Delays Rotting Of Posts Sunk in Ground

Fence posts and uprights for yard swings—as a matter of fact, any wooden post that is to be sunk in the ground — should be well protected from the moisture in the earth. The wood should be thoroughly soaked in creosota or double-coated with this material. Such treatment will delay rotting and the destruction of the wood by insects. There are other rot preventive materials now available over which it is possible to apply light-colored paint.

Keep Light Bulbs Dry

If you decide your electric light bulbs need a bath, hold them by the metal end and keep it covered when bathing them. Then be sure that the bulb is dry before putting it back in the socket. Any trace of moisture can cause a short circuit.

Just Go Ahead

It is not necessary to seal knots in cypress before painting.

Attic Fan Will Cool a House At Small Cost

Despite the fact that the attic fan is one of the most economical methods of cooling a house, only 400,000 attic fans are now in use in American homes, says the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau.

The attic fan insures a brisk circulation of cooling air through the house. Taking advantage of the fact that outside air after sundown is usually from 15 to 25 degrees cooler than the hot air trapped inside the house, an attic fan quickly lowers the indoor temperature.

The new night-air cooling fans are efficient, quiet, inexpensive to operate and simple to install, the bureau says. They run slowly to reduce vibration.

An attic fan is a permanent installation providing many years of trouble-free operation. Extensive remodeling of living quarters is not required for the installation of an attic fan.

A 36-inch fan which is the typical size for the medium house will circulate 10,000 cubic feet of air out of and into the house each minute. In contrast, a table model electric fan has a capacity of only 500 to 1,000 cubic feet a minute. Furthermore, a table fan merely circulates and does not replace hot air.

Soft Enamel Finish

Where a soft, velvety enamel finish is required, semi-gloss enamel should be used. This type of enamel produces a finish which resembles a rubbed finish on gloss enamel. If even less gloss is desired, it may be obtained by using a flat enamel, which produces almost a dead flat effect.

Wall Pickup

If you haven't colorful maps, prints or pictures to pin up on the recreation room wall, coat colorful road maps with several coats of shellac and glue them to the walls. They'll come in handy, too, when you're planning a trip.

Soil Decides When Plants Need Water

Each gardener will have to determine for himself how often and how much to water his house plants. Conditions vary too much in different homes to set up a schedule to suit all. The rule is to water when a plant needs it. This means that with few exceptions the soil should be permitted to become reasonably dry before water is given.

Plants in small pots will, of course, dry out quicker than those in larger ones. Exposure to light and heat also affects them. Actively growing plants need more moisture than those taking a rest.

Never apply more at any time than the soil will hold. There never should be any need to empty a saucer, but if it should happen, remove the seepage within a quarter of an hour after it has collected.

Curtain Control

Curtains that flutter out of open windows in the summer breeze can be controlled by applying a strip of cellophane tape to the bottom edge of each curtain and to the window sill.

Space for Storage

Ample space for the storage of food, utensils and dishes in the kitchen of the average home can be provided in eight running feet of wall cabinets and 13½ feet of base cabinets.

Wiring Is Obsolete In Many Homes

A home with a well-designed wiring system is a better home and will withstand obsolescence longer, according to the House and Home Finance Agency. Reason for this is that electrical usage in the home is increasing by leaps and bounds. Wiring based only on today's needs may be obsolete in a few years.

Today the average home has at least 11 electrical appliances and twice that number of lamps and lighting fixtures. Many 20-year-old homes already are electrically obsolete, necessitating widespread use of makeshift extension cords. In many cases the wire itself is too small to supply current for the larger use of electricity.

Gardiner Youths Cited During 4-H Banquet Thursday

Miss Barbara Tucker and Raymond DuBois, both of Gardiner, were designated Ulster county 4-H Holstein champion girl and boy at a banquet of the USO (Ulster, Sullivan, Orange) Holstein Club at the Pine Bush Grange Hall Thursday night.

The speaker was Professor Thomas Wiley of Cornell University, who told of the contests, awards and recognition open to 4-H Club members.

Enrolled 4-H members attending the banquet included Hilda Sauer, last year's alternate National Holstein girl, and Leonard Rider, Robert Kelder, George DePew, Donald Rider, Janice Kelder, Harold Baker, Wayne Kelder, Jean Kelder, Ronald Roosa and Robert Kelder. Past members who assisted in arrangements were Gerald DeWitt, Phillip Dairs and Frank Coddington.

Harry J. Beatty, a charter member of the USO Holstein Club, was presented with a citation for 25 years active membership in the New York State Holstein Friesian Association.

Queens DA Indicted For Accepting Fees

New York, Jan. 31 (AP)—Queens District Attorney T. Vincent Quinn has been indicted on additional charges of accepting fees for representing clients before federal agencies while a member of Congress.

Named with Quinn yesterday by a Brooklyn federal grand jury were his two former law partners, James D. Saver and Martin Schwaeber. The 16-count indictment accuses them of illegally accepting fees totaling $13,600 from four clients.

Quinn, who has denied similar charges in an eight-count indictment, termed the latest accusations "another step in the continued political persecution."

Yesterday's indictment charged Quinn and his former associates of accepting fees of $3,500 from Peter Kustuk, duck farm operator at Riverhead, N. Y.; $5,000 from J. Vincent O'Shea of Babylon, N. Y., and other amounts from other clients.

Quinn, 49, was a Democratic member of the House of Representatives from the Queens Fifth District from 1949 through 1951.

Mrs. Sember was taken to the hospital by ambulance where she was found to have a dislocated right shoulder and a possible fracture of the collar bone.

Much Work Ahead

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 31 (AP)—Connecticut's General Assembly, controlled by Republicans, today had before it 2,332 bills which it must consider before adjournment in four months or so from now. Bills in piles were dumped on legislative clerks' desks before Friday's 5 p. m. deadline for new business. A week ago the number of bills introduced numbered a little more than 500. The remainder poured in during four days this week.

Alleged Victim Is Named in Papers Filed With OPS

Mineola, N. Y., Jan. 31 (AP)—The man who allegedly was victimized by three former Office of Price Stabilization aides accused of extortion was said in court yesterday to have been the subject of several complaints lodged with the OPS.

The statement came from Milton C. Meyer, of New York city, the OPS district deputy complaint inspector, as a defense witness in the trial of Seymour Chotiner, 29, of Mt. Vernon; Dennis O'Shea, 40, of Pleasantville, and William T. Holland, 36, of the Bronx.

The three are on trial in Nassau county court for allegedly taking a $1,200 payoff from awning salesman Garland L. Culpepper, Jr., to fix a price ceiling gouge case.

Chotiner, a former OPS attorney, was once legal adviser to Mt. Vernon's mayor. O'Shea and Holland are former OPS investigators.

Under questioning by Chotiner's attorney, former Nassau County District Attorney Edward J. Neary, Meyer told the court:

"We had some complaints against Culpepper last July, and I sent reports on him down to Washington headquarters to be studied. I also assigned O'Shea and Holland to interview Culpepper."

What action was taken in Washington, if any, was not revealed in the testimony.

Started With Used Car

The incident from which the present trial stems occurred in August.

Frank Rossi, of Fort Worth, Tex., a used car dealer visiting in the Bronx at the time, testified to some of the background.

He said he bought a 1952 Cadillac convertible from Culpepper last Aug. 4, paying $5,335, although Culpepper had asked $5,500.

Mayer testified the ceiling price for the car was $4,938.42.

Rossi said he protested the alleged overcharge to the OPS.

After the OPS men allegedly demanded that Culpepper pay them off, he went to the district attorney's office and was advised to make the payment in marked money.

Detectives arrested the three after the money allegedly changed hands in Culpepper's office here.

Another defense witness today was Rabbi Max Maccoby, of the Mt. Vernon Free Synagogue. The rabbi said he officiated at Chotinoff's wedding nine years ago and has always known the defendant as a man of excellent reputation.

The trial before Judge Norman F. Lent resumes Monday.

New Red Trial Denied

New York, Jan. 31 (AP)—A federal judge has denied all motions for a new trial asked by the 13 Communist leaders convicted on charges of conspiring to advocate the overthrow of the government by violence. Said Judge Edward J. Dimock yesterday: "I deny all motions. The discussions of these motions before me were very informative and threw a light on the weight of evidence against the defendants which I never had before." Defense lawyers for the 13 have been arguing new trial motions since Wednesday. Judge Dimock has set sentencing for Monday.

Heck Would Clean Up Bar and Bench

New York, Jan. 31 (AP)—Assembly Speaker Oswald D. Heck told the State Bar Association today it should "cleanse both bar and bench of those who bring discredit upon our institutions."

The Schenectady Republican noted that recent testimony before the State Crime Commission had brought "an avalanche of criticism" against the present system of selecting State Supreme Court justices in this state.

"Obviously a continuation of this criticism will result in destroying public confidence in the integrity and fairness of our courts, and something will have to be done," he said in a speech prepared for the annual luncheon of the judicial section of the Bar Association.

The speaker pointed out that several proposals were before the legislature to change the current methods of selecting and appointing judicial officers. He said "whether any of these bills will successfully weather the legislative barrage is a matter of question."

But he said the Bar Association would have to take drastic action or "an even more drastic" step would be taken by "other agencies."

Hawks Continue Upward Climb

(By The Associated Press)

The surprising Milwaukee Hawks are playing no favorites in their drive to climb out of the Western Division cellar in the NBA.

The Hawks, led by Mel Hutchins and Jack Nichols, defeated the Syracuse Nationals, 84-68, last night in the second game of a doubleheader at Milwaukee. The loss dropped Syracuse out of a first place tie with the New York Knickerbockers in the league's Eastern Division.

In the opener of the doubleheader, the Rochester Royals scored a 70-68 overtime victory over the Fort Wayne Pistons.

Hutchins scored 23 points and Nichols 21 as Milwaukee rolled to its eighth victory in its ten starts. The Hawks now are only a half game behind fourth-place Indianapolis in the Western Division.

Need Only Two More On Jean Parsons Jury

Wichita Falls, Tex., Jan. 31 (AP)—The tense testimony stage in the Mary Jean Parsons bridegroom murder trial was only two jurors away today.

After five days of questioning nearly 300 veniremen amid much bickering and sharp [illegible] between attorneys, ten men were in the jury box. Two were chosen yesterday.

Mrs. Parsons, 22, former University of Oklahoma coed and daughter of a prominent Tulsa, Okla., family, is charged with slaying her husband of a month, Army Lt. Richard O. Parsons, 24, of Pleasantville, N. Y. The fatal shooting occurred Feb. 16, 1952, in their El Paso apartment.

After she was found sane by an El Paso jury, the case was transferred here on a change of venue. Twice, through technical errors in choosing prospective jurors, the trial was postponed.

Saratoga Asks Two-Way Boost on Racing Tax

Ballston Spa, N. Y., Jan. 31 (AP)—Saratoga county, home of the nation's oldest thoroughbred horse racing track, is asking legislative permission for a two-way boost of its tax on pari-mutuel betting receipts.

The county board of supervisors yesterday asked the lawmakers to restore permission for a full 5 per cent county tax on receipts at flat tracks, and to extend the permission to cover betting at harness tracks.

Under present state law, counties containing thoroughbred tracks may tax pari-mutuel receipts through 1955, and the law then expires. The rate, originally 5 per cent, falls to 3 per cent this year, 2 per cent in 1954, and 1 per cent in 1955.

Highest Assessed Valuation

An Attractive Small Home

Bedrooms .... Two
Closets .... Seven
Cubage, House: ...... 17,800 ft.
Garage .... 3,800 ft.
Dimensions .... 33' x 25'

Just about any type of exterior finish can be successfully used on "The General," thus leaving the home builder a wide variety of choice. Blinds, vertical wood strips painted a shade contrasting with that used for the rest of the exterior, a decorative front entry and blinds as used in the illustration—these are suggested as ways of brightening up the exterior appearance of this house.

Measuring 33' x 25', the house proper has a cubage of 17,800 feet. Cubage of the garage is 3800 feet while cubage of the porch or breezeway connecting the house and garage is 1000 feet.

Although small in size, the entry hall is sufficiently large to protect the living room from drafts caused by opening the front door and to also provide welcome storage space in the form of a good sized coat closet in the back wall.

Spacious, well lighted and pleasant, the living room has three windows in its front wall, looking out on the terrace. Long unbroken expanses along both the back and left walls facilitate the arrangement of large furniture pieces.

Connected directly with the living room, the dining room in "The General" takes the place of the breakfast area found in many modern homes. Ideally suited for family meals and also for more formal dinners, the small cheerful room is amply lighted and ventilated by one window in the back wall.

The lady of the house will appreciate the location of the kitchen right next to the dining room. Well planned and modernly equipped, the kitchen contains a generous amount of storage and counter space including an extra section of work counter extending from the stove to the large broom closet in the right front corner of the room.

To the home builder is left the decision as to how to use the porch or breezeway connecting the house and garage. If so desired, this porch can be completely enclosed and used as a first floor laundry or utility room. Direct access should be provided to the yard if this porchway is converted into a laundry.

The wealth of centrally located storage space also is certain to delight the lady of the house. Both bedrooms boast spacious closets. And, in addition to an unusually large linen closet, there are two all-purpose closets that open on the hallway connecting the bedrooms and the bath.

In the full cement basement of "The General" the home owner will find ample space for a recreation room, hobby shop, etc.; this will be especially true if the laundry is on the first floor of the house. The heating plant should, of course, be placed under the living room.

Blueprints Available

Complete plans and specifications for this house and all other "Home of the Week" designs are available at moderate cost. For plan prices, write to the Home Building Editor, Dept. 24, Kingston Daily Freeman and enclose a self-addressed, 3c stamped envelope. Allow 7 to 10 days for a reply.

Treatment Delays Rotting Of Posts Sunk in Ground

Fence posts and uprights for yard swings—as a matter of fact, any wooden post that is to be sunk in the ground — should be well protected from the moisture in the earth. The wood should be thoroughly soaked in creosota or double-coated with this material. Such treatment will delay rotting and the destruction of the wood by insects. There are other rot preventive materials now available over which it is possible to apply light-colored paint.

Keep Light Bulbs Dry

If you decide your electric light bulbs need a bath, hold them by the metal end and keep it covered when bathing them. Then be sure that the bulb is dry before putting it back in the socket. Any trace of moisture can cause a short circuit.

Just Go Ahead

It is not necessary to seal knots in cypress before painting.

Attic Fan Will Cool a House At Small Cost

Despite the fact that the attic fan is one of the most economical methods of cooling a house, only 400,000 attic fans are now in use in American homes, says the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau.

The attic fan insures a brisk circulation of cooling air through the house. Taking advantage of the fact that outside air after sundown is usually from 15 to 25 degrees cooler than the hot air trapped inside the house, an attic fan quickly lowers the indoor temperature.

The new night-air cooling fans are efficient, quiet, inexpensive to operate and simple to install, the bureau says. They run slowly to reduce vibration.

An attic fan is a permanent installation providing many years of trouble-free operation. Extensive remodeling of living quarters is not required for the installation of an attic fan.

A 36-inch fan which is the typical size for the medium house will circulate 10,000 cubic feet of air out of and into the house each minute. In contrast, a table model electric fan has a capacity of only 500 to 1,000 cubic feet a minute. Furthermore, a table fan merely circulates and does not replace hot air.

Soft Enamel Finish

Where a soft, velvety enamel finish is required, semi-gloss enamel should be used. This type of enamel produces a finish which resembles a rubbed finish on gloss enamel. If even less gloss is desired, it may be obtained by using a flat enamel, which produces almost a dead flat effect.

Wall Pickup

If you haven't colorful maps, prints or pictures to pin up on the recreation room wall, coat colorful road maps with several coats of shellac and glue them to the walls. They'll come in handy, too, when you're planning a trip.

Soil Decides When Plants Need Water

Each gardener will have to determine for himself how often and how much to water his house plants. Conditions vary too much in different homes to set up a schedule to suit all. The rule is to water when a plant needs it. This means that with few exceptions the soil should be permitted to become reasonably dry before water is given.

Plants in small pots will, of course, dry out quicker than those in larger ones. Exposure to light and heat also affects them. Actively growing plants need more moisture than those taking a rest.

Never apply more at any time than the soil will hold. There never should be any need to empty a saucer, but if it should happen, remove the seepage within a quarter of an hour after it has collected.

Curtain Control

Curtains that flutter out of open windows in the summer breeze can be controlled by applying a strip of cellophane tape to the bottom edge of each curtain and to the window sill.

Space for Storage

Ample space for the storage of food, utensils and dishes in the kitchen of the average home can be provided in eight running feet of wall cabinets and 13½ feet of base cabinets.

Wiring Is Obsolete In Many Homes

A home with a well-designed wiring system is a better home and will withstand obsolescence longer, according to the House and Home Finance Agency. Reason for this is that electrical usage in the home is increasing by leaps and bounds. Wiring based only on today's needs may be obsolete in a few years.

Today the average home has at least 11 electrical appliances and twice that number of lamps and lighting fixtures. Many 20-year-old homes already are electrically obsolete, necessitating widespread use of makeshift extension cords. In many cases the wire itself is too small to supply current for the larger use of electricity.

SCIENCE LAG

The National Science Foundation reports an alarming shortage of scientists in this country and warns that the situation is not improving. In Russia a government controlled program is assuring the government of an adequate supply of scientists. In this country we cannot adopt the authoritarian methods of the Communists in determining the careers of our young people but unless we solve the problem of what we can do we may soon trail the Russians in scientific research.

The decline in the number of students preparing for careers in science may be explained in part by the fact that a scientist must continue his formal studies several years beyond the earning of his undergraduate degree. While many of the young men who returned from World War II went back to complete their college courses, few wanted to delay making a start in life by taking on postgraduate work. Industry beckoned with good jobs at good salaries for newly graduated engineers, physicists and chemists.

When we entered World War II science in this country received a shot in the arm. There was a need for new weapons, for quicker and easier ways to do things. Our best scientific minds were put to this task. The progress they made was all the result of basic research, much of it done years before the war. Basic research is the quest for knowledge for its own sake rather than for practical application. It is the evolving of theories and the making of discoveries which can later be used by inventors and engineers. World War II stimulated our practical science but we have been rapidly using up our store of knowledge gained from basic research.

It is important that we should concern ourselves with ways of increasing our defense production. But unless we find some way to relieve our shortage of scientists the defense effort and eventually our standard of living will suffer.

WHAT PRICE POLITICS?

Although there are definite restrictions on the amount of money a man can spend in campaigning for a federal office the laws are frequently ignored or circumvented. The Senate elections sub-committee recently made several recommendations which might take some of the dishonesty out of election practices.

As matters stand now a man campaigning for the Senate may spend $10,000, or an amount equal to ten cents multiplied by the number of votes in the last Senatorial election in his state. This may not exceed $25,000. The elections subcommittee cited the 1950 campaign between Senator Taft and Joseph Ferguson as an example of how little attention is paid to this law.

Both Taft and Ferguson were able to report expenditures far below the limit. But organizations supporting them spent $1,000,000. "Volunteer" groups and committees working for the election of a particular candidate are difficult to regulate.

The elections sub-committee recommends that the amount of money allowed Senate candidates be raised to ten cents times the number of voters in the previous election with a $250,000 limit. The committee also urged tightening of controls on expenditures of groups affiliated with the candidates and stricter accounts from volunteer groups.

How much money a candidate should be allowed to spend is a serious question. Certainly he should be able to get his views and opinions across to the voters and should be able to spend the money he needs to do this. On the other hand restrictions are needed to keep those with unlimited funds from controlling elections. Where the line is and how it should be drawn is difficult to say. Present laws, however, encourage hypocrisy and should be revised.

To one factor alone belongs the record of destroying more men than all the wars of history, of stealing more than five hundred million dollars each year in the United States, of killing thousands upon thousands of workers each year. The unenviable force is carelessness, which, with a little effort, could be wiped out.

Nearly one third of all Americans now live in cities of fifty thousand or more population, we are told. Even though cities are increasing, we must still insist that life in the country is great, too.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

ON CRIME

I am not a reporter of crime and usually the subject bores me except on such a radio show as "Dragnet," which I hear when I am permitted to stay home.

So I approach the problem of the New York City waterfront as a reader rather than a columnist.

Some questions arise which, it seems to me, need answering. They have not been answered in the news yet.

For instance, as I read the testimony of the crime investigation in New York, it looked as though the evidence were reaching the conclusion that one Thomas Luchese, better known as Three-Finger Brown, was being shown to have closer relations with the Mayor, the Federal Prosecutor's office, certain Federal judges and other officials than his occupation and status would warrant. In fact, as I read the news, it was indicated that when a narcotics tip-off took place, the squealer got killed and yet the information could not have leaked except officially.

So what was done about it? Nothing! I see no examination of that highly significant bit of evidence that a squealer provided information to an official who relayed it to another official and the squealer got killed. Certainly that should have been investigated to get at the facts.

The Luchese investigation was dropped suddenly and just when it was getting good. One story about town is that Luchese has always been bipartisan, showing a most undiscriminating and tolerant attitude, particularly toward the judges. It was shown that this Luchese mixed in the best Republican and Democratic society. But why was the investigation dropped?

Further, I would like it explained how it is that while the waterfront has been a cesspool of crime, corruption, labor union racketeering, theft, pilfering, for so many years that shippers are fleeing this port, so little has been done by the ordinary agencies of law enforcement over the years.

For instance, Thomas E. Dewey is supposed to be a gang-buster. How come that as District Attorney and Governor of the State, he has never busted these waterfront gangs? The material that has been coming out in the evidence shows that this waterfront has been a criminal sanctuary. Who made it a sanctuary? What have the police done? The District Attorney's office? The State Industrial Commissioner's office? These are the people who need to be investigated to find out why they have permitted such horrible conditions to come into existence.

There is some evidence that racketeering has moved back into the garment industry, where it originated under the gentle management of Sidney Hillman and the torpedoes, Lepke and Gurrah. It was assumed that the investigation was going to move into that type of racketeering which has had its accompaniment of murder. But that investigation withered on the vine. It would seem that we are close to a mayoralty campaign and that an endorsement by the Liberal Party is a valuable gift for any politician. It is hard to believe that about some politicians, but if they fail to bring out the facts and they do get the Liberal Party endorsement, we shall know that they have been conniving even if we can never prove it.

The testimony has already established that the murderers, thieves, racketeers and other criminals who operate on the waterfront could not have even got started without the agreement and consent of public officials and businessmen. The testimony of the shippers and other businessmen before the State Crime Commission was disagreeable reading because it showed that several of the leading ones were poltroons and fools, with a penchant for making money but with the morals of a mangy alley cat.

However, I note that a few politicians have been called and I suspect that it may be merciful, because from the leads in the evidence, some very big heads in this great city would prefer to be six feet underground rather than to have to admit not only complicity but hypocrisy.

Just as a reader, not as an expert in crime, I cannot fail to reach the conclusion that there must be a kind of trade unionism among officials based on the slogan: "If you won't expose me, I won't expose you." Besides, what's really at stake? The lives of some bums, at little graft which is less than the ECA spends on teaching the Swiss how to yodel, and maybe the future of New York.

REMOVING TONSILS

"Tonsillectomy and adenoidectomy (removal of tonsils and adenoids) have erroneously been considered relatively minor operations. They are undertaken by all categories of the medical profession, from the general practitioner, to the general surgeon. In smaller centers with "open" hospitals, very few of these cases are referred to the otolaryngologist (ear and throat specialist)."

I am quoting Dr. P. B. Percheson, of Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, in the Canadian Medical Association Journal.

Many readers may have the idea that removing the tonsils is a simple method of peeling out the tonsils, like removing the kernel from a nut, and removing adenoids is simply scraping out soft spongy tissue from back part of nose and throat.

Still further, many readers, and some physicians, believe that the danger of leaving suspected tonsils and adenoids in throat is not serious and many operations are performed unnecessarily. They point to the fact that tonsils and adenoids disappear at or before puberty and in the case of the tonsils, particularly, actually prevent infection as the tonsils are natural filterers of the blood.

These operations are criticized because they are often performed by physicians who are not specialists and many patients are left with remnants or tages which, like the tonsil itself, can cause infection, once the tonsil has lost the power of filtering the blood.

Dr. Percheson who is the anesthetist with the Moose Jaw Clinic calls attention to the report of Dr. T. L. Hyde who found these remnants or tags in 68 per cent of 1,000 tonsillectomized patients picked at random, most of whom thought that their surgeon was a specialist.

It is admitted that removal of tonsils presents difficulties (small space in which to work, small mouth or receding jaw, and danger of bleeding). Because of these considerations, Dr. Percheson states that even specialists approach the removal of tonsils with a great deal of trepidation, especially when the method of anesthesia does not insure them of minute to minute control of the patient and the complications of the operation.

An outline of method of anesthesia is given, using a quieting drug an hour before operation and a special apparatus combining certain anesthetizing drugs is presented.

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington (NEA) — They're thinking of renaming the Pentagon "Automobile Row" now, and the crisis didn't arise just from the Senate fight over confirmation of General Motors' Charles E. Wilson as Secretary of Defense. It's much more personal than that.

It seems that the government automobile assigned to the former Secretary of Defense, Robert A. Lovett, was a big, black Chrysler. When Secretary Wilson heard about that, he was sorely troubled. As the ex-president of General Motors, he was afraid his automobile pals back in Detroit would rib him unmercifully if he were caught riding down Pennsylvania avenue in the inaugural parade, in a competitor's car.

This terrible second crisis was finally brought to the attention of no less an official than the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. Omar Bradley. And to its everlasting credit, the JCS came through with a battle plan that saved the day.

General Bradley said that the car assigned to him was a Cadillac, which as everyone knows is a G.M. job. But General Bradley said he wasn't proud and didn't care what he rode around in.

So a swap was made and the license plates of the chairman of JCS and the new Defense Secretary were changed on the two cars.

Freeman, the driver assigned to the secretary's office, took his new Cad and shined it up fine for the parade. Then he thought maybe he'd better take it into the garage and get its insides checked over. Just to play safe.

But on the way to the garage, the car went pff-t. Freeman called up for a trouble car, and the mechanics found him almost white. "Think what it would have been," he mumbled, "if that had happened in the parade."

The final irony of all this was that on the way to the inaugural ball, Mr. Wilson's car actually did break down.

Defense Procurement

The hassle over confirmation of C. E. Wilson as Secretary of Defense in the Eisenhower cabinet may eventually result in a new, broad and long-range directive from Congress on government buying for the military services.

At the present time there is no such directive. There is actually a conflict between the existing "Buy American" act and the "off-shore" procurement program started by Mutual Security Administration to get more arms for less money through foreign manufacture.

Also, there are several small-busines acts which require that the little fellows be given their fair share of defense contracts.

Department of Defense officials have long contended that on many military items required in quantity, small manufacturers just aren't qualified to bid. And with a team of big-business executives in control of the armed services, small business might get a still smaller cut of the pie.

Congressmen wouldn't like that, because small business is a good political issue. It's as good as home, mother, the flag and doing something more for the veterans.

The present defense procurement picture is that General Motors is the largest contractor. It has $5.4 billion worth of military supplies on order. This is 7.8 per cent of all procurement contracts, on a dollar basis.

Issue in World War II

One of the other objections which congressmen have to putting big-business executives in top government positions is that it gives them access to confidential information about their principal competitors.

This was a hot issue in the War Production Board setup during World War II. The Senate War Investigating Committee, headed by a fellow named Harry Truman, fought against this in its opposition to the naming of "dollar-a-year men" to the WPB staff. The Truman committee insisted that these men get rid of their private holdings and go to work at government salaries, wherever possible.

This issue wasn't raised later, however, in the case of Republican Paul Hoffman, who was named first head of the Marshall Plan by President Truman. Mr. Hoffman resigned his presidency of Studebaker Corporation, but was allowed to keep his stock.

Three High Hurdles

Secretary Wilson's ability to capitalize on his new job to the advantage of General Motors is mitigated by three steps in the defense contract procedure. They include competitive bidding in procurement, negotiation of contract and, finally, renegotiation.

This would make it necessary to corrupt three separate sets of officials. The Re-negotiation Board, separate from Department of Defense, reviews all contracts to make sure that contractors make only a "reasonable profit." More efficient producers are allowed a higher profit than the inefficient.

Deportation Cases

As a result of his speeded-up drive against undesirable aliens and immigrants in the United States, former Attorney General James P. McGranery has left his successor, Herbert Brownell, a file of 140 deportation and denaturalization cases to go to work on. Thirty-six of the cases started are against subversives and 104 are against racketeers and criminals.

Eighteen denaturalization petitions have been filed—six against subversives and 12 against racketeers. They involve some of the worst known names in Communist fronts and the underworld.

The subversives include James Lustig, J. J. Matles, Constantine Radzie, Jeremy Jerome, Louis Weinstock and Al Richmond. The last three named are among the 14 Los Angeles and 13 New York Communist Party workers brought to trial under the Smith Act.

The racketeers include Albert Anastasia, big wheel of the New York waterfront; Frank Costello, the gambler; Thomas Luchese, also known as "Three Finger" Brown; Samuel Accardi, Pete Corrado, Vito Genovese, Angelo Meli, Alfred P. Polizzi, Anthony Ricci, Hyman Chaim Stromberg, Anthony Volpe and Meyer Lansky.

Each of the accused has 60 days after his case is filed in which to make answer to the charges against him. Deportation is a separate court proceeding after denaturalization is completed. But eventually, Mr. McGranery believes that all these undesirables can be kicked out of the country.

Aggressive Instinct of War

Editor, The Freeman

One of the most common beliefs relative to the aggressive instinct of the human race is that wars are necessary results of human nature.

A group of several hundred American psychologists discounted this belief by 90 per cent in a recent poll. They feel war as an inevitability is unsound psychologically because it handicaps peace efforts.

Therefore, anyone accepting this common belief ignores the avenues of practicality in settling international disputes without a costly war. The question arises—whose aggressive instincts—those who fight the war, or those whose acts lead to it?

In totalitarian countries people don't know why they are fighting a war because they are victims of propaganda, and not by any aggressive instinct.

Society doesn't tolerate the settling of individual disputes by fighting. We have accepted courts of law, and whatever the decision, that settles the matter. It is then unfair to say, because of human nature wars are necessary.

The United Nations should act as the international court to establish that same justice among nations, that we enjoy here as citizens.

This, I believe, is the key to world peace, relative to this aggressive instinct.

I don't believe anyone will dispute the fact that it is a sad state of affairs when we spend years teaching our children the sanctity of human life, human rights, of property, etc., punishing violators severely; then in a war the opposite is permissible by injecting the idea of self preservation, and letting the matter rest.

This is not the problem of America alone, but the whole world working as a unit through the UN to outlaw such mistakes leading to the damage of human character on the battlefield. This is rich ground for debate, thought and action, but the insistence upon peaceable adjustment of international confliction (as in the individuals) will erect a foundation contrary to this unscientific idea that war is necessary because of aggressive instincts in human beings.

Sincerely yours,
EDWIN J. HIGBY

Fluoridation of Water

Editor, The Freeman:

Dr. Charles A. Brusch, director of the Medical Center, Cambridge, Mass., said he was opposed "on medical grounds" to the fluoridation of water.

In a statement which was printed in the January 2, 1953 edition of the Boston Traveler, Dr. Brusch expressed amazement that activity to fluoridate water supplies is being pushed harder, rather than ceasing at once. Fluoridation of water, he said, is entirely in the experimental state and "United States citizens should not be used as guinea pigs."

He advocated warnings to all communities by state authorities citing the dangers of this procedure.

"We cannot prophesy what would happen to the organs of the body if it is subjected to constant doses of fluorine for a lifetime."

Dr. Brusch said that the public could not decide intelligently on fluoridation because they have not been furnished with "true information", although the Select Committee of Congress asked that all facts be made available to the public.

"Doctors know that we must have the patient's consent before we try any experiment, and the individual must know the full nature of the experiment and its possible consequences," he declared.

Dr. Brusch listed some of the harmful toxic effects of fluoride:

Damage to the brain and nerve cells.

Harm to the reproductive organs.

Damage to the kidneys, liver and thyroid gland.

Create a high incidence of bone fractures.

Knowledge about the toxic (poisonous) effects of fluoride is limited due to the obvious lack of proper and sufficient tests by our Public Health Researchers.

New York State Assemblyman Ben Werbel, Brooklyn Democrat, has introduced a bill to the New York State Assembly to "Require Fluoridation of All Public Water Supply Systems in the State."

We are urging all our patients and friends to write at once to their Assemblyman John S. Wadlin, New York State Assembly, Albany, New York, to oppose this outrageous bill, using the foregoing information.

We advise that you take similar action to protect your family's health, freedom and personal liberties.

Sincerely,
WARREN J. SUSSIN,
Chiropractor.

SCIENCE LAG

The National Science Foundation reports an alarming shortage of scientists in this country and warns that the situation is not improving. In Russia a government controlled program is assuring the government of an adequate supply of scientists. In this country we cannot adopt the authoritarian methods of the Communists in determining the careers of our young people but unless we solve the problem of what we can do we may soon trail the Russians in scientific research.

The decline in the number of students preparing for careers in science may be explained in part by the fact that a scientist must continue his formal studies several years beyond the earning of his undergraduate degree. While many of the young men who returned from World War II went back to complete their college courses, few wanted to delay making a start in life by taking on postgraduate work. Industry beckoned with good jobs at good salaries for newly graduated engineers, physicists and chemists.

When we entered World War II science in this country received a shot in the arm. There was a need for new weapons, for quicker and easier ways to do things. Our best scientific minds were put to this task. The progress they made was all the result of basic research, much of it done years before the war. Basic research is the quest for knowledge for its own sake rather than for practical application. It is the evolving of theories and the making of discoveries which can later be used by inventors and engineers. World War II stimulated our practical science but we have been rapidly using up our store of knowledge gained from basic research.

It is important that we should concern ourselves with ways of increasing our defense production. But unless we find some way to relieve our shortage of scientists the defense effort and eventually our standard of living will suffer.

WHAT PRICE POLITICS?

Although there are definite restrictions on the amount of money a man can spend in campaigning for a federal office the laws are frequently ignored or circumvented. The Senate elections sub-committee recently made several recommendations which might take some of the dishonesty out of election practices.

As matters stand now a man campaigning for the Senate may spend $10,000, or an amount equal to ten cents multiplied by the number of votes in the last Senatorial election in his state. This may not exceed $25,000. The elections subcommittee cited the 1950 campaign between Senator Taft and Joseph Ferguson as an example of how little attention is paid to this law.

Both Taft and Ferguson were able to report expenditures far below the limit. But organizations supporting them spent $1,000,000. "Volunteer" groups and committees working for the election of a particular candidate are difficult to regulate.

The elections sub-committee recommends that the amount of money allowed Senate candidates be raised to ten cents times the number of voters in the previous election with a $250,000 limit. The committee also urged tightening of controls on expenditures of groups affiliated with the candidates and stricter accounts from volunteer groups.

How much money a candidate should be allowed to spend is a serious question. Certainly he should be able to get his views and opinions across to the voters and should be able to spend the money he needs to do this. On the other hand restrictions are needed to keep those with unlimited funds from controlling elections. Where the line is and how it should be drawn is difficult to say. Present laws, however, encourage hypocrisy and should be revised.

To one factor alone belongs the record of destroying more men than all the wars of history, of stealing more than five hundred million dollars each year in the United States, of killing thousands upon thousands of workers each year. The unenviable force is carelessness, which, with a little effort, could be wiped out.

Nearly one third of all Americans now live in cities of fifty thousand or more population, we are told. Even though cities are increasing, we must still insist that life in the country is great, too.

ON CRIME

I am not a reporter of crime and usually the subject bores me except on such a radio show as "Dragnet," which I hear when I am permitted to stay home.

So I approach the problem of the New York City waterfront as a reader rather than a columnist.

Some questions arise which, it seems to me, need answering. They have not been answered in the news yet.

For instance, as I read the testimony of the crime investigation in New York, it looked as though the evidence were reaching the conclusion that one Thomas Luchese, better known as Three-Finger Brown, was being shown to have closer relations with the Mayor, the Federal Prosecutor's office, certain Federal judges and other officials than his occupation and status would warrant. In fact, as I read the news, it was indicated that when a narcotics tip-off took place, the squealer got killed and yet the information could not have leaked except officially.

So what was done about it? Nothing! I see no examination of that highly significant bit of evidence that a squealer provided information to an official who relayed it to another official and the squealer got killed. Certainly that should have been investigated to get at the facts.

The Luchese investigation was dropped suddenly and just when it was getting good. One story about town is that Luchese has always been bipartisan, showing a most undiscriminating and tolerant attitude, particularly toward the judges. It was shown that this Luchese mixed in the best Republican and Democratic society. But why was the investigation dropped?

Further, I would like it explained how it is that while the waterfront has been a cesspool of crime, corruption, labor union racketeering, theft, pilfering, for so many years that shippers are fleeing this port, so little has been done by the ordinary agencies of law enforcement over the years.

For instance, Thomas E. Dewey is supposed to be a gang-buster. How come that as District Attorney and Governor of the State, he has never busted these waterfront gangs? The material that has been coming out in the evidence shows that this waterfront has been a criminal sanctuary. Who made it a sanctuary? What have the police done? The District Attorney's office? The State Industrial Commissioner's office? These are the people who need to be investigated to find out why they have permitted such horrible conditions to come into existence.

There is some evidence that racketeering has moved back into the garment industry, where it originated under the gentle management of Sidney Hillman and the torpedoes, Lepke and Gurrah. It was assumed that the investigation was going to move into that type of racketeering which has had its accompaniment of murder. But that investigation withered on the vine. It would seem that we are close to a mayoralty campaign and that an endorsement by the Liberal Party is a valuable gift for any politician. It is hard to believe that about some politicians, but if they fail to bring out the facts and they do get the Liberal Party endorsement, we shall know that they have been conniving even if we can never prove it.

The testimony has already established that the murderers, thieves, racketeers and other criminals who operate on the waterfront could not have even got started without the agreement and consent of public officials and businessmen. The testimony of the shippers and other businessmen before the State Crime Commission was disagreeable reading because it showed that several of the leading ones were poltroons and fools, with a penchant for making money but with the morals of a mangy alley cat.

However, I note that a few politicians have been called and I suspect that it may be merciful, because from the leads in the evidence, some very big heads in this great city would prefer to be six feet underground rather than to have to admit not only complicity but hypocrisy.

Just as a reader, not as an expert in crime, I cannot fail to reach the conclusion that there must be a kind of trade unionism among officials based on the slogan: "If you won't expose me, I won't expose you." Besides, what's really at stake? The lives of some bums, at little graft which is less than the ECA spends on teaching the Swiss how to yodel, and maybe the future of New York.

In smaller centers with "open" hospitals, very few of these cases are referred to the otolaryngologist (ear and throat specialist)."

I am quoting Dr. P. B. Percheson, of Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, in the Canadian Medical Association Journal.

Many readers may have the idea that removing the tonsils is a simple method of peeling out the tonsils, like removing the kernel from a nut, and removing adenoids is simply scraping out soft spongy tissue from back part of nose and throat.

These operations are criticized because they are often performed by physicians who are not specialists and many patients are left with remnants or tages which, like the tonsil itself, can cause infection, once the tonsil has lost the power of filtering the blood.

Dr. Percheson who is the anesthetist with the Moose Jaw Clinic calls attention to the report of Dr. T. L. Hyde who found these remnants or tags in 68 per cent of 1,000 tonsillectomized patients picked at random, most of whom thought that their surgeon was a specialist.

It is admitted that removal of tonsils presents difficulties (small space in which to work, small mouth or receding jaw, and danger of bleeding). Because of these considerations, Dr. Percheson states that even specialists approach the removal of tonsils with a great deal of trepidation, especially when the method of anesthesia does not insure them of minute to minute control of the patient and the complications of the operation.

An outline of method of anesthesia is given, using a quieting drug an hour before operation and a special apparatus combining certain anesthetizing drugs is presented.

NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington (NEA) — They're thinking of renaming the Pentagon "Automobile Row" now, and the crisis didn't arise just from the Senate fight over confirmation of General Motors' Charles E. Wilson as Secretary of Defense. It's much more personal than that.

It seems that the government automobile assigned to the former Secretary of Defense, Robert A. Lovett, was a big, black Chrysler. When Secretary Wilson heard about that, he was sorely troubled. As the ex-president of General Motors, he was afraid his automobile pals back in Detroit would rib him unmercifully if he were caught riding down Pennsylvania avenue in the inaugural parade, in a competitor's car.

This terrible second crisis was finally brought to the attention of no less an official than the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. Omar Bradley. And to its everlasting credit, the JCS came through with a battle plan that saved the day.

General Bradley said that the car assigned to him was a Cadillac, which as everyone knows is a G.M. job. But General Bradley said he wasn't proud and didn't care what he rode around in.

So a swap was made and the license plates of the chairman of JCS and the new Defense Secretary were changed on the two cars.

Freeman, the driver assigned to the secretary's office, took his new Cad and shined it up fine for the parade. Then he thought maybe he'd better take it into the garage and get its insides checked over. Just to play safe.

But on the way to the garage, the car went pff-t. Freeman called up for a trouble car, and the mechanics found him almost white. "Think what it would have been," he mumbled, "if that had happened in the parade."

The final irony of all this was that on the way to the inaugural ball, Mr. Wilson's car actually did break down.

Defense Procurement

The hassle over confirmation of C. E. Wilson as Secretary of Defense in the Eisenhower cabinet may eventually result in a new, broad and long-range directive from Congress on government buying for the military services.

At the present time there is no such directive. There is actually a conflict between the existing "Buy American" act and the "off-shore" procurement program started by Mutual Security Administration to get more arms for less money through foreign manufacture.

Also, there are several small-busines acts which require that the little fellows be given their fair share of defense contracts.

Department of Defense officials have long contended that on many military items required in quantity, small manufacturers just aren't qualified to bid. And with a team of big-business executives in control of the armed services, small business might get a still smaller cut of the pie.

Congressmen wouldn't like that, because small business is a good political issue. It's as good as home, mother, the flag and doing something more for the veterans.

The present defense procurement picture is that General Motors is the largest contractor. It has $5.4 billion worth of military supplies on order. This is 7.8 per cent of all procurement contracts, on a dollar basis.

Issue in World War II

One of the other objections which congressmen have to putting big-business executives in top government positions is that it gives them access to confidential information about their principal competitors.

This was a hot issue in the War Production Board setup during World War II. The Senate War Investigating Committee, headed by a fellow named Harry Truman, fought against this in its opposition to the naming of "dollar-a-year men" to the WPB staff. The Truman committee insisted that these men get rid of their private holdings and go to work at government salaries, wherever possible.

This issue wasn't raised later, however, in the case of Republican Paul Hoffman, who was named first head of the Marshall Plan by President Truman. Mr. Hoffman resigned his presidency of Studebaker Corporation, but was allowed to keep his stock.

Three High Hurdles

Secretary Wilson's ability to capitalize on his new job to the advantage of General Motors is mitigated by three steps in the defense contract procedure. They include competitive bidding in procurement, negotiation of contract and, finally, renegotiation.

This would make it necessary to corrupt three separate sets of officials. The Re-negotiation Board, separate from Department of Defense, reviews all contracts to make sure that contractors make only a "reasonable profit." More efficient producers are allowed a higher profit than the inefficient.

Deportation Cases

As a result of his speeded-up drive against undesirable aliens and immigrants in the United States, former Attorney General James P. McGranery has left his successor, Herbert Brownell, a file of 140 deportation and denaturalization cases to go to work on. Thirty-six of the cases started are against subversives and 104 are against racketeers and criminals.

Eighteen denaturalization petitions have been filed—six against subversives and 12 against racketeers. They involve some of the worst known names in Communist fronts and the underworld.

The subversives include James Lustig, J. J. Matles, Constantine Radzie, Jeremy Jerome, Louis Weinstock and Al Richmond. The last three named are among the 14 Los Angeles and 13 New York Communist Party workers brought to trial under the Smith Act.

The racketeers include Albert Anastasia, big wheel of the New York waterfront; Frank Costello, the gambler; Thomas Luchese, also known as "Three Finger" Brown; Samuel Accardi, Pete Corrado, Vito Genovese, Angelo Meli, Alfred P. Polizzi, Anthony Ricci, Hyman Chaim Stromberg, Anthony Volpe and Meyer Lansky.

Each of the accused has 60 days after his case is filed in which to make answer to the charges against him. Deportation is a separate court proceeding after denaturalization is completed. But eventually, Mr. McGranery believes that all these undesirables can be kicked out of the country.

Museum Gets Truman Hat

Rome, N. Y. (AP)—One of former President Harry Truman's hats will occupy a niche in the proposed colonial museum on the Oriskany Battlefield site. When Truman was whistle-stopping here last fall he was presented a brown derby, emblematic of the late Gov. Alfred E. Smith, by Edward Seelig who asked Truman for one of his hats for the museum. Inside the hat, which came by registered mail, was the notation, "Made expressly for Harry S. Truman."

Aggressive Instinct of War

Editor, The Freeman

One of the most common beliefs relative to the aggressive instinct of the human race is that wars are necessary results of human nature.

A group of several hundred American psychologists discounted this belief by 90 per cent in a recent poll. They feel war as an inevitability is unsound psychologically because it handicaps peace efforts.

Therefore, anyone accepting this common belief ignores the avenues of practicality in settling international disputes without a costly war. The question arises—whose aggressive instincts—those who fight the war, or those whose acts lead to it?

In totalitarian countries people don't know why they are fighting a war because they are victims of propaganda, and not by any aggressive instinct.

Society doesn't tolerate the settling of individual disputes by fighting. We have accepted courts of law, and whatever the decision, that settles the matter. It is then unfair to say, because of human nature wars are necessary.

The United Nations should act as the international court to establish that same justice among nations, that we enjoy here as citizens.

This, I believe, is the key to world peace, relative to this aggressive instinct.

I don't believe anyone will dispute the fact that it is a sad state of affairs when we spend years teaching our children the sanctity of human life, human rights, of property, etc., punishing violators severely; then in a war the opposite is permissible by injecting the idea of self preservation, and letting the matter rest.

This is not the problem of America alone, but the whole world working as a unit through the UN to outlaw such mistakes leading to the damage of human character on the battlefield. This is rich ground for debate, thought and action, but the insistence upon peaceable adjustment of international confliction (as in the individuals) will erect a foundation contrary to this unscientific idea that war is necessary because of aggressive instincts in human beings.

Sincerely yours,
EDWIN J. HIGBY

Fluoridation of Water

Editor, The Freeman:

Dr. Charles A. Brusch, director of the Medical Center, Cambridge, Mass., said he was opposed "on medical grounds" to the fluoridation of water.

In a statement which was printed in the January 2, 1953 edition of the Boston Traveler, Dr. Brusch expressed amazement that activity to fluoridate water supplies is being pushed harder, rather than ceasing at once. Fluoridation of water, he said, is entirely in the experimental state and "United States citizens should not be used as guinea pigs."

He advocated warnings to all communities by state authorities citing the dangers of this procedure.

"We cannot prophesy what would happen to the organs of the body if it is subjected to constant doses of fluorine for a lifetime."

Dr. Brusch said that the public could not decide intelligently on fluoridation because they have not been furnished with "true information", although the Select Committee of Congress asked that all facts be made available to the public.

"Doctors know that we must have the patient's consent before we try any experiment, and the individual must know the full nature of the experiment and its possible consequences," he declared.

Dr. Brusch listed some of the harmful toxic effects of fluoride:

Damage to the brain and nerve cells.

Harm to the reproductive organs.

Damage to the kidneys, liver and thyroid gland.

Create a high incidence of bone fractures.

Knowledge about the toxic (poisonous) effects of fluoride is limited due to the obvious lack of proper and sufficient tests by our Public Health Researchers.

New York State Assemblyman Ben Werbel, Brooklyn Democrat, has introduced a bill to the New York State Assembly to "Require Fluoridation of All Public Water Supply Systems in the State."

We are urging all our patients and friends to write at once to their Assemblyman John S. Wadlin, New York State Assembly, Albany, New York, to oppose this outrageous bill, using the foregoing information.

We advise that you take similar action to protect your family's health, freedom and personal liberties.

Sincerely,
WARREN J. SUSSIN,
Chiropractor.

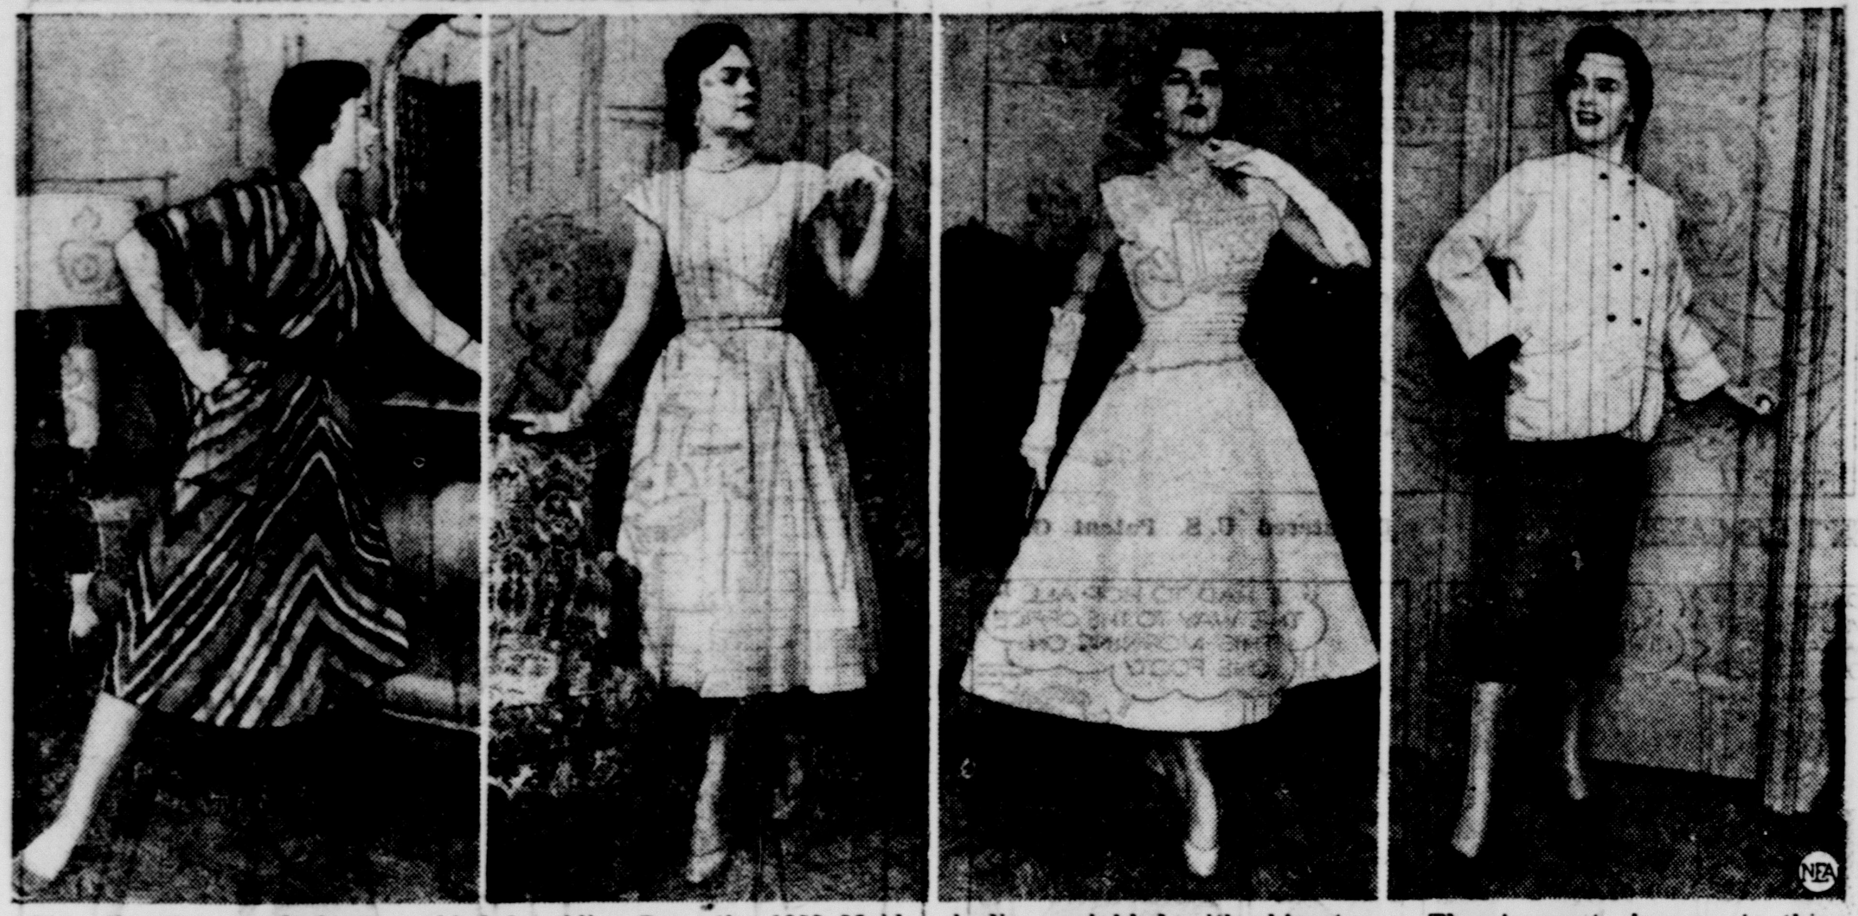
Forty Designers Created Wardrobe



The all-cotton wardrobe assembled for Alice Corr, the 1953 Maid of Cotton, demonstrates graphically the versatility of cotton. She wears (left) Korday's striped denim in the rich colorings of deep red, green, blue, brown and gold. Dress is straight up-and-down sheath, belted in at waist and worn with shawl fringed in black. Pastel plaid gingham (left center) by Jerry Parnis has small bodice sprinkled with rhinestones. There's great elegance in this tucked pink cotton chiffon (right center) by Adele Simpson. Skirt has architectural fullness. Coordinated denim is used (right) by Claire McCardell for tapering, boxy jacket in sand color over slim skirt and pleated halter. Skirt is plain charcoal, halter is striped and jacket is lined with the same stripe.

By GAILE DUGAS

New York (NEA)—Each year the wardrobe of the Maid of Cotton demonstrates the new uses that designers have found for cotton, placing it in every possible wardrobe role.

This year, the new Maid will take 45 fashions by 40 different designers with her on her tour of 30 cities in the United States, several European capitals and important cities in South America. This year's Maid is pretty Alice Corr of Alabama.

For the first time, the Maid actually will have two wardrobes. The first will be suitable for both northern and resort wear until Easter. The second will be for wear after Easter. Her wardrobe includes dresses, coats, suits, separates, accessories, raincoats, cotton luggage, shoes and jewelry.

The coats that Miss Corr wears now in New York, the unofficial starting point for her tour, are velveteen. Entirely suited to winter weather, these coats are shown in black with a quilted lining in small print and in hollow-cut gray velveteen. For evening wear, there's a high-luster white poplin coat.

Miss Corr won her title over 21 other finalists at Memphis. A Maid of Cotton is chosen each year to act as goodwill ambassador and fashion representative for the American cotton industry.

KEEP FOR HAPPIER DAY

A young woman writes me: "I recently announced my intention to marry and at the same time notified my employer of my resignation. A farewell party was given me by my fellow employes and I was also given silver toward which all the members of the office had contributed. My fiance and I have broken our engagement and I have returned all presents of value, but I am at loss to know what to do with this silver that was both a wedding present and a farewell gift from so many people. Will you please tell me the correct thing to do?"

Under the circumstances, I don't think you can do anything but keep it, with the hope that some day before too long you may happily use it.

Boy Friends Included

Dear Mrs. Post: I would like to give a rather large party for my many college friends. Quite a few of them are engaged but I do not know the names of their fiances or have their addresses. Since I want a mixed party of equal numbers, may I write on my invitations, "Please bring a date," and send the invitations to my friends only? If this is not correct, how would you suggest I do it?

Answer: To those you know are engaged, you can write, "This invitation includes your fiance" and to others, "This invitation includes any man you care to bring."

A Happy Situation

Dear Mrs. Post: My father died long ago; I have no brothers or uncle to give me away. I am truly fond of my fiance's father and I would like to have him take my father's place. My future mother-in-law approves, and says she is sure her husband will be pleased, but before asking him I'd like to make sure it will be all right.

Answer: It will be entirely all right. In fact, the thought that you are that close to your future in-laws would be appealing to everyone.

Women Will Hold World Prayer Day Friday, Feb. 20

The World Day of Prayer observed each year on the first Friday of Lent will be held this year Friday, Feb. 20, with two services, one at 2:30 p. m., and the other at 7:30 p. m., at the Fair Street Reformed Church.

In 1952, the service was held in more than 17,000 communities in the United States. Women in 113 countries participated. Each year the National World Day of Prayer Committee of United Church Women invites one or more women from a chosen country to write the service. The 1953 service comes from the women of Africa. Due to the many dialects in both India and Africa several different translations are for each. The service also is available in Braille.

The film strip, World Day of Prayer, is still available for use by women's groups for dates between Feb. 6 and 18. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. H. P. Van Wagenen at 812. There will be a World Day of Prayer broadcast over the local radio station at 1:30 p. m. Tuesday, Feb. 17.

Washington, Jan. 31 (AP)—The personal debts of Americans added up to $23,975,000,000 at the end of last year, the Federal Reserve Board says. It reported yesterday that consumer credit jumped 3 1/3 billion dollars during 1952. That was more than six times the 1951 increase.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Tourney Is Place To See Good Hands

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

When the American Contract Bridge League recently published all 256 hands of the recent World Championship Match, held in New York, I was reminded of many of the classic hands of other world championships. Today's hand, for example, was played in the first such match, held in Bermuda in 1950.

Johnny Crawford was the enterprising soul who made the three spade bid on the South hand. Johnny wouldn't teach this bid to a pupil, and he wasn't exactly proud of it at the time—but he was dealt thirteen cards, and Johnny hates to pass any time he is lucky enough to be dealt thirteen cards.

George Rapee modestly raised to four spades, never dreaming that his partner had opened such a mousetrap. When West doubled, Rapee went for broke with a redouble. This was sound enough, of course. Smith could hardly be set more than one trick with such a dummy, and might make the contract with overtricks if he had a really sound opening three-bid.

Crawford should have lost a trick in each suit, but an opponent slipped. I'll say this for Crawford: he gets himself out on a limb often enough, but you can't afford to make mistakes against him.

West opened a trump, and East took the ace and returned a trump to dummy's king. Crawford returned a low heart from dummy, and West took the nine of hearts and shifted to a low diamond. Crawford then ruffed a heart to enter his own hand, after which he led his singleton club towards dummy.

West hemmed and hawed over this play and finally decided not to take his ace. Crawford shot up with dummy's king of clubs to win the trick, cashed the ace of diamonds, and ruffed another heart. He then led a low diamond to drop West's queen, after which his jack of diamonds was good for his tenth trick.

Not very neat, perhaps, but gaudy enough for anybody's taste.

Drop Not So Fast

Washington, Jan. 31 — Farm prices dropped between mid-December and mid-January, but not so fast as before. The Agriculture Department reported yesterday that the decline was a little less than 1 per cent, compared to slumps of up to 3 per cent in some previous months. The mid-January figure, representing the fifth consecutive month of decreases, placed the farm price level about 11 per cent below a year ago and the lowest since August, 1950.

Tells GOP Women 2 Parties Needed

New York, Jan. 31 (AP)—Maryland Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin today told the National Women's Republican Club that the "low estate of the Democratic party .. should be no cause for jubilation by us."

In an address prepared for delivery at a noon luncheon the governor said, "we need and America needs a loyal opposition of strength and virility."

"Let us hope then that the Democratic party shall shed the shroud cast over it by too many years of one-man rule and shall again develop thinking that is worthy of public attention, and leaders worthy of our steel.

"The potentiality for such leadership does exist, but it exists primarily among southern statesmen whose positions of influence have been confined within state or sectional borders by the arbitrary national bossism of the New Deal and the so-called Fair Deal," he said.

Lauds Eisenhower

Referring to President Eisenhower, McKeldin said his faith "increases daily" that the country has "one of the greatest presidents" in its history.

He commented also on the challenge by some Senate members of the appointment of Charles E. Wilson as secretary of defense because of his holdings of stock in General Motors, a firm with many government contracts.

"The whistlings and the murmurs have died away. The administration has recognized the propriety of the Senate's concern. Mr. Wilson has adjusted his affairs to make possible his good services above doubt or suspicion. The integrity of the administration has been demonstrated in its response and the whole affair has served to illustrate the healthy balance between the executive and legislative branches of the government. The American people, I feel, heartily approve," the governor said.

Religious Radio Programs

Cooperating with Station WKNY and presented as a public service, the Kingston Ministerial Association sponsors the morning devotions each day of next week except Sunday, at 8:20, with the following ministers officiating as indicated: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the Rev. Robert T. Shellenberger, pastor of St. John's Episcopal Church; Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the Rev. Frederick T. Fike, pastor of the Church of The Nazarene. On Sunday from 11 to 12 o'clock, the morning service at the Clinton Avenue Methodist Church will be broadcast. The pastor, the Rev. Dr. Clyde Herbert Snell, will preach the sermon.

The light of a candle 40,000 miles away could be picked up by the Palomar telescope, near San Diego, Calif.

Forty Designers Created Wardrobe

By GAILE DUGAS

New York (NEA)—Each year the wardrobe of the Maid of Cotton demonstrates the new uses that designers have found for cotton, placing it in every possible wardrobe role.

This year, the new Maid will take 45 fashions by 40 different designers with her on her tour of 30 cities in the United States, several European capitals and important cities in South America. This year's Maid is pretty Alice Corr of Alabama.

For the first time, the Maid actually will have two wardrobes. The first will be suitable for both northern and resort wear until Easter. The second will be for wear after Easter. Her wardrobe includes dresses, coats, suits, separates, accessories, raincoats, cotton luggage, shoes and jewelry.

The coats that Miss Corr wears now in New York, the unofficial starting point for her tour, are velveteen. Entirely suited to winter weather, these coats are shown in black with a quilted lining in small print and in hollow-cut gray velveteen. For evening wear, there's a high-luster white poplin coat.

Miss Corr won her title over 21 other finalists at Memphis. A Maid of Cotton is chosen each year to act as goodwill ambassador and fashion representative for the American cotton industry.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

KEEP FOR HAPPIER DAY

A young woman writes me: "I recently announced my intention to marry and at the same time notified my employer of my resignotion. A farewell party was given me by my fellow employes and I was also given silver toward which all the members of the office had contributed. My fiance and I have broken our engagement and I have returned all presents of value, but I am at loss to know what to do with this silver that was both a wedding present and a farewell gift from so many people. Will you please tell me the correct thing to do?"

Under the circumstances, I don't think you can do anything but keep it, with the hope that some day before too long you may happily use it.

Boy Friends Included

Dear Mrs. Post: I would like to give a rather large party for my many college friends. Quite a few of them are engaged but I do not know the names of their fiances or have their addresses. Since I want a mixed party of equal numbers, may I write on my invitations, "Please bring a date," and send the invitations to my friends only? If this is not correct, how would you suggest I do it?

Answer: To those you know are engaged, you can write, "This invitation includes your fiance" and to others, "This invitation includes any man you care to bring."

A Happy Situation

Dear Mrs. Post: My father died long ago; I have no brothers or uncle to give me away. I am truly fond of my fiance's father and I would like to have him take my father's place. My future mother-in-law approves, and says she is sure her husband will be pleased, but before asking him I'd like to make sure it will be all right.

Answer: It will be entirely all right. In fact, the thought that you are that close to your future in-laws would be appealing to everyone.

Not very neat, perhaps, but gaudy enough for anybody's taste.

Drop Not So Fast

Washington, Jan. 31 — Farm prices dropped between mid-December and mid-January, but not so fast as before. The Agriculture Department reported yesterday that the decline was a little less than 1 per cent, compared to slumps of up to 3 per cent in some previous months. The mid-January figure, representing the fifth consecutive month of decreases, placed the farm price level about 11 per cent below a year ago and the lowest since August, 1950.

Tells GOP Women 2 Parties Needed

New York, Jan. 31 (AP)—Maryland Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin today told the National Women's Republican Club that the "low estate of the Democratic party .. should be no cause for jubilation by us."

In an address prepared for delivery at a noon luncheon the governor said, "we need and America needs a loyal opposition of strength and virility."

"Let us hope then that the Democratic party shall shed the shroud cast over it by too many years of one-man rule and shall again develop thinking that is worthy of public attention, and leaders worthy of our steel.

"The potentiality for such leadership does exist, but it exists primarily among southern statesmen whose positions of influence have been confined within state or sectional borders by the arbitrary national bossism of the New Deal and the so-called Fair Deal," he said.

Lauds Eisenhower

Referring to President Eisenhower, McKeldin said his faith "increases daily" that the country has "one of the greatest presidents" in its history.

He commented also on the challenge by some Senate members of the appointment of Charles E. Wilson as secretary of defense because of his holdings of stock in General Motors, a firm with many government contracts.

"The whistlings and the murmurs have died away. The administration has recognized the propriety of the Senate's concern. Mr. Wilson has adjusted his affairs to make possible his good services above doubt or suspicion. The integrity of the administration has been demonstrated in its response and the whole affair has served to illustrate the healthy balance between the executive and legislative branches of the government. The American people, I feel, heartily approve," the governor said.

Religious Radio Programs

Cooperating with Station WKNY and presented as a public service, the Kingston Ministerial Association sponsors the morning devotions each day of next week except Sunday, at 8:20, with the following ministers officiating as indicated: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the Rev. Robert T. Shellenberger, pastor of St. John's Episcopal Church; Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the Rev. Frederick T. Fike, pastor of the Church of The Nazarene. On Sunday from 11 to 12 o'clock, the morning service at the Clinton Avenue Methodist Church will be broadcast. The pastor, the Rev. Dr. Clyde Robert Snell, will preach the sermon.

The light of a candle 40,000 miles away could be picked up by the Palomar telescope, near San Diego, Calif.

A person brings nothing into this world and takes nothing out of it. And considering the kind of world it is, he's extremely lucky to break even.

During an exciting game of football, one of the players had a couple of fingers badly smashed. The team doctor rushed him off the field and examined and dressed his hand.

Player — Doctor, (anxiously) when my hand heals, will I be able to play the piano?

Doctor—Certainly you will.

Player — You're a wonderful doctor. I never could play the piano before.

If a man takes off his hat in an elevator, it means that he has good manners—and hair.

The Polka is not solely a women's dance today, but its name simply means "woman" in Polish. Originally a great many more women participated in this form of dancing than men, thereby accounting for the name.

Pressed for two quarters by exploits of a star individual, the Kingston High School varsity cagers ran away from the Monticello Monties in the second half last night on the Sullivan county boards.

The impressvie 69-57 triumph was effected in the last two periods after the Monties pushed the Kiasmen, 25-28, at the half and crept to within 37-35 early in the third period.

Newburgh Academy, meanwhile, rolled over a stubborn Port Jervis quintet, 54-49, for its 31st straight victory in eighth in a row during the 1952-53 campaign.

The fact that Mickey "The Marvel" Burkoski saw only limited action because of a sprained ankle kept the tri-staters within respectable distance of the Glamorous Goldbacks.

In other action, Poughkeepsie humbled its county neighbor, Beacon, with a surprising burst of power, 88-61, and Middletown High notched its third victory with a 49-38 decision over Ellenville.

Bezemer Tops Maroon

Dick Bezemer's 19 points led Kingston but the Maroons flashed good scoring balance. Bill Haber exited in the third quarter on personals but Telepas clicked beautifully with hook shots for 16 points. Bill DuBois' set shots and running one-handers resulted in 17 points, his best harvest on the road and Skipper Brodhead accounted for 10.

Bezemer dominated the backboards and came up with 24 rebounds for a seasonal high.

The Kingston defense couldn't stop Joe Gold, the Montie ace who succeeds Irv Podhurst in the No. 1 role at that school. The flashy junior hit for a dozen fields and four singletons for 28 points.

Kingston' triumph paved the way for Tuesday night's showdown battle at Fallsburgh for second place. Kingston tied the idle comets last night at 6 wins and 2 losses. Poughkeepsie and Monticello have records of 5 wins and 3 setbacks.

Bill Huber, a NFA sub, and Larry Kimball, veteran guard, led the Goldbacks with 15 points.

Bob Dahowski unloaded 27 points and Leo Elwell had 24 in Poughkeepsie's rout of Beacon.

Bill Hurley's Jayvees moved blithely to their seventh win of the season with an easy 58-48 decision over the Monticello JVs in the prelim.

Tom Fleming took over high scoring honors for the night with 17 points. The team's best point producer, Herbie Waterous, settled for 16 and Charlie Johnson equalled that mark.

Trachtenberg of the Mounties led both clubs with 23 points.

Late Surge Gives Three Bros. 88-72 Win at Highland Falls

Opposing teams are finding it's a tough problem to contain the Three Bros. Farms cagers in the fourth quarter.

Latest opponent to feel the wrath of a late Three Bros. surge was the Highland Falls Pelicans 88-72, Thursday on the Orange county court.

It was nip and tuck for two periods, with the Esopus quintet leading 18-10 at the quarter and 37-29 at half time. The Pelicans sliced the lead by six points in the third quarter, then "bong," the Farms lowered the boom with a 30-point fourth period.

Brumfield of the Pelicans led the individual heroics with 24 points, but the Three Bros. flashed the greater balance and scoring depth. Richie Mains and Harold Hutton rimmed 18 points each; Bill Hermance unloaded 15 and Frank Fiore had 10.

The Three Bros. are scheduled for a return engagement with the powerful Saugerties All Stars tonight on the upriver court. Three Bros. upset the villagers by a wide margin in their first meeting and a packed house is expected to watch tonight.

Martinez Looks Past Fiore to Bout With Vejar

New York, Jan. 31 (AP)—Vince Martinez, the 1952 rookie of the year, has his eye on a fight with Chuck Davey but he's willing to settle for Chico Vejar, the man who made Davey famous.

"I'd like to fight that Davey," said Martinez after his unanimous decision win over Carmine Fiore last night at Madison Square Garden. "Everyone says he's so good. I think I can beat him right now."

Reminded that Davey had other business—his welter title challenge against champion Kid Gavilan at Chicago, Feb. 11, Martinez agreed he also would like a shot at Vejar.

It was two wins over Vejar, then a red hot TV sensation, that shot Davey into the high brackets of the income tax derby. Martinez hopes to vault into the big money, too, with a bout with belting Chico from Stamford, Conn.

"We'd take Vejar tomorrow," said Manager Tex Pelte. He may have a chance. Matchmaker Billy Brown of the Garden plans to discuss the match with Steve Ellis, Chico's silver-tongued manager. Brown has a March date in mind.

The usual delegation from the Westinghouse plant in Paterson, N. J., turned out to root Martinez home. Because he brought along his own gang, the receipts totalled a good $17,897 from 5,541. That's above par in this TV age.

The clever Martinez, winning his 13th straight and 26 in 27 starts, was sharp and fast in his punching. Still be ran into occasional trouble from Fiore, a rough and ready left hooker from Brooklyn's Bensonhurst section.

Harrison's Putter Grabs Tucson Lead

Tucson, Ariz., Jan. 31 (AP)—Skillful putting sent E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, Ardmore, Okla., into today's third round of the $10,000 Tucson Open golf tourney with a two-stroke lead over his nearest challenger.

For two days the putter has been pulling the 42-year-old veteran out of trouble time after time. He credits it and luck for his 10-under par, 36-hole total of 64-66-130.

Chandler Harper, Portsmouth, Va., holds sole possession of second place with a pair of 66's for a total of 132 but the former PGA champ is worried about a mysterious arm ailment that is causing him pain.

Tommy Bolt, Maplewood, N. J., hasn't gone over par while collecting seven birdies for rounds of 65-68-133 and third place.

The pros, including most of the game's biggest names, are collecting birdies by the hundreds over the 6,402-yard, par 70 El Rio Golf and Country Club course.

Juhl Has 2-Game Total 45 Points

The perils of basketball on the road caught up with Coach Loren D. Campbell's New Paltz State Teachers in a two-day safari into Connecticut.

Outscored by slim margins but never outclassed, the Orange dropped its second and third decisions of the season.

Waterbury tripped the county cagers, 63-55 last night, after Willimantic Teachers copped an 83-82 thriller the night before.

Thirty foul conversions kept New Paltz in the game after they had frittered away a 26-15 quarter lead and were in front 46-43 at the half.

Big Andy Juhl, nearing the end of his New Paltz career because of a draft call, unloaded 28 points against Willimantic and 17 against Waterbury.

Willie Donoghue with a two-game total of 27 and Wulff with 22 were other NP stars.

Hot Night

Williamsburg, Va., Jan. 31 (AP)—William and Mary hit an amazing 50 per cent of its field goal attempts against Virginia Tech last night—including one that wasn't intended for a shot. Attempting to flip the ball down court on a fast break tiny guard Joe Hume pitched it 67 feet and right through the hoop. It was probably the longest field goal ever scored in Glow Gymnasium. The two points weren't really necessary. William and Mary won, 91-74.

Philadelphia, Jan. 31 (AP)—Frank L. McNamee, city fire commissioner, has been elected president of the Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League. Chosen yesterday at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the pro club, McNamee succeeds James P. Clark, who resigned because of ill health.

Jump Shot Big Equalizer, Puts Little Man Among Goons in Basketball Scoring Derby

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
(NEA Sports Writer)

The spectacular jump shot is the big equalizer that's thrust the little man back into modern basketball.

Chuck Mencel of the University of Minnesota is a case in point. Only 5-10, which by basketball standards puts him in Lilliput's class, he's the Gopher's leading scorer and key backcourt threat.

A stabbing jump shot in which Chuck looks like he's about to execute a backbend put him among the goons.

"It's one of the newest shots in basketball," says the 19-year-old sophomore from Eau Claire, Wis., "and is becoming the most popular. I think it's because it gives a great advantage to the smaller man and I have found this especially true for myself."

To digress for a moment, Coach Honey Russell of unbeaten Seton Hall argues that the jump shot existed in basketball 35 years ago when he was playing pro ball.

"But it didn't become a vogue," says Honey "until little guys like Kenny Sailors of Wyoming brought it in from the west in the early 1940s.

Fulks the Greatest

"I know Bob Davies of my team used to use it, but most of the time he'd pass off when he reached the peak of his leap instead of shooting. Your true jump shooter is a man like Joe Fulks, who's a gunner. He's going for the basket and when he was at Murray State and in his first couple of years with the pros he was probably the greatest jump shooter of all time."

Fulks, of course, is 6-5. He had it made. To Mencel, perfecting a shot to overcome height deficiencies was a necessity.

Johnny O'Brien of Seattle was another small man who developed a jump shot to become a great scorer.

"If I can get one quick step on a defensive man," says Mencel, "I can always get the shot off because I'm falling away when I shoot. It's not really necesary to jump very high. I think the effectiveness lies in the quickness. A lot of fellows emphasize height too much, and this throws the shots off.

"My own version starts with a dribble to the left, which is my best side, and a quick jump releasing the ball when I am at the highest point."

Sinks From Anywhere

The great jump-shooters — fellows like Paul Arizin of Villanova and the Philadelphia Warriors—achieve a state of animated suspension at the peak. So while the defensive man who went up with him starts to descend, Arizin maintains that loft an extra moment and gets off his shot unchallenged.

How about distance? Red Auerbach of the Boston Celtics decrees against its use from more than 15 feet out. Russell backs him up. They say accuracy is affected.

Mencel, however, will toss his jump from anywhere over the center line. And sink it. Villanova's Larry Hennessy is another jump-shooter who makes any place on the floor his launching site.

"A guy like that's awful tough if he can hit from far out," Russell concedes. He's almost impossible to guard.

"It puts a lot more pressure on a defensive man. It's a shot that should never be blocked. And if you play the man loose, hoping he won't hit he'll cross you up with an outside set shot."

Sounds like the only defense is to lower the basket.

That's a switch from the old clamor of raising them.

5233 Is Number To Call for Latest Skiing Conditions

If you want up-to-the-minute ski information in the future, call Kingston 5233 any time of the day or night.

This new plan to keep area skiers abreast of last minute changes in weather and trail conditions at Belleayre, Highmount and Simpson's Slope at Phoenicia has been developed by the Trail Sweepers Ski Club and the Kingston Chamber of Commerce.

This service eliminates the necessity of making long distance calls to get the information and is operated as a public service to help promote skiing in the area.

The ski development operators have agreed to report changes in conditions and supply accurate information regularly. The service will be available as long as there is skiing in the central Catskill region.

Cost of the plan has been made possible by public subscriptions, but a spokesman requested that the names of sponsors be withheld.

Don't forget, the number is "5233."

Woodstock Varsity Scores 85-55 Rout Of Grahamsville

Woodstock Varsity returned to its old formula of Billy Waterous and Big Bill Kleine to overpower the Grahamsville quintet, 85-55, last night on the village court.

Shaking an extended slump, Waterous looked like his old self for the first time in weeks as he bucketed 23 points on 11 fields and a foul.

Kleine, the "Mr. Points" of the squad cashed in on 21 and Bill "Boo" Schaffer rimmed 16. D. Terbush paced the mountaineers with 17 points.

Shortly after the opening tapoff it ceased to be a contest, Woodstock running up a 27-8 quarter lead. By halftime they led 47-24. The JVs whipped Hurley 49-43 in the prelim.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

The crowd was filing out of municipal auditorium, jabbering enthusiastically about that sensational battle between Sherman White's Bombardiers and Billy Loes All Stars.

The exultation was genuine. The 700 odd spectators had seen brilliant individual exploits by an unheralded Jack "Slats" Slattery; the inimitable Sherman White and Johnny Cottrill. Not to mention Pete Dente, whose phenomenal clutch shooting for the Loes crowd might have been overlooked in that heart-gripping fourth quarter.

George Svirsky and Dr. Saul Goldfarb of the Lions Club basketball committee were loitering in the lobby like a couple of guys who just had their pants stolen and still couldn't feel any draft. They agreed that, maybe, the Lions Club hadn't made any money on the promotion. But they won friends and gave a lot of folks a thrilling spectacle; something the local professional sports scene has needed for some time.

But the most intriguing observer was the guy who is always the last to leave the auditorium—ageless Dick Williams, the one-time pitching great, custodian of the building.

Dick stood around with that faraway look in his eyes, as if he were peering through the mist over the heads of White, Cottrill and Slattery into the dim past of "Pop" Morgenweck, Carlie Husta, Tiny Hearn, the Artus brothers, Benny Borgmann and others in basketball's march of time.

If Morgenweck had been there he might have sympathized with Williams.

"This isn't basketball," he said to a guy standing near him. "Can you imagine a couple of basketball teams scoring 209 points in one game?"

"These guys shoot like crazy," he went on. "Give me the old style."

These were the words of a non-conformist, the rugged old timer who has never accepted modern fire house basketball.

"That Slattery was terrific," Dick added, "if you judge him by today's standards. But, can you imagine him cutting and driving, digging and scrapping like he did tonight in the old days against Husta, Hearn and that bunch? They would have torn him in two. When he came charging into the basket somebody would give him an elbow . . . and there'd he be . . . " Remembering the "good old days", the guy shuddered.

That's what time does to sports fans. They admire the moderns but hate to relinquish their associations with the past.

Whether that was basketball in the virginial form as intended by Dr. Naismith's peach basket is not for us to decide. As a spectacle it was a brilliant, thrilling sight. Peerless White, aggressive Slattery, a "small man" by modern concepts and Johnny Cottrill, the Hudson valley's best player.

There were rhubarbs especially on the 6th foul call against Cottrill when he was winging along with 31 points and seven minutes to go. It was the toughest of all basketball calls—as Nick Cosmos and Al Gruner will readily admit. The old story, when does a block end and a "charge" start. Such a call seldom satisfies the spectators.

This was real modern basketball; no "workout" like the performance put on by the Rochester Royals and N. Y. Rens when they "stunk out" the joint last week at IBM. There is a keen rivalry between the clubs and White was just as great as he had to be.

At half time the former LIU ace complained that the Loes Stars were riding him too hard under the boards. He can't retaliate like he desires. After all he's the big draw and it's his job to stay in the ball game. The fans are there to watch him. He barely made it, finishing with 5 fouls. But did you ever see such matchless shooting? Nearly every deuce and foul faded through the cords with that beautiful "swish" that is a symphony of joy to the basketball player's ear.

George Svirsky and the Lions Club made a tremendous effort to get the fans out. By comparison, the crowd of 700 was a slight disappointment but it lent encouragement to the future. Maybe on another night more fans would turn out to see White and Slattery. It's worth a try.

And about that firehouse style of basketball, we finally got Dick Williams to admit that he'd rather ride Cadillac than Model-T, anyday.

Cardinal Veep Probable Successor to Fred Saigh

New York, Jan. 31 (AP) — Bill Walsingham, Jr. probably will be the new owner of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Current boss Fred M. Saigh, who yesterday agreed to step out of baseball following his 15-month sentence and $15,000 fine for evasion of income tax, intimated as much today when he asserted Walsingham would be given first choice to purchase the stock.

"All things being equal," said the beleaguered Cardinal president, "Walsingham will get first consideration. Bill is a capable baseball man. He is thoroughly familiar with the inner works of the Cardinal organization and it would be of benefit to the city of St. Louis and all Cardinal fans if he were to assume control. He is a St. Louis native and worked his way up from a peanut vendor at the ball park. I'd like to see him buy the club."

Plans Indefinite

Saigh said he was not prepared to place a price on his Cardinal stock which amounts to all but seven shares.

"I honestly haven't given that matter too much thought," he said. "I am trying to do one thing at a time. First, I've got to go about selecting a three-man committee to run the club.

"Then I guess I'll be busy for awhile cleaning up my desk. This whole thing has come as such a shock to me that I haven't even had time to collect my senses.

"In the meantime I'm hoping against hope that somehow, someone in the government will take it upon himself to reopen my case. I'm convinced if they'll only take the time to check my books thoroughly they'll find no evidence of any fraud."

Walsingham, currently representing the Cardinals as vice president, expressed pleasure over Saigh's show of preference and reiterated he was keenly interested in purchasing the club.

World Champ Sledder Killed in Final Run On German Course

Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, Jan. 31 (AP)—Felix Endrich, Switzerland's world champion bob sledder, was killed here today in the crash of his four-man sled in a trial run before the start of the world championship contest.

Endrich's sled skidded over the high wall of the dangerous Bavarian curve and sailed nearly 40 feet through the air before it smashed against a tree.

Endrich, a 32-year-old office equipment salesman from Zurich, who was married only last month had won the two-man bob sled championship last weekend.

He was pulled from the sled with a shattered skull and pronounced dead on arrival at Garmisch Hospital.

Two other members of Endrich's crew, Aby Gartmann and Rene Heiland, were badly but not critically injured.

King Meets Goulart In Boston TV Clash

Late Surge Gives Three Bros. 88-72 Win at Highland Falls

Opposing teams are finding it's a tough problem to contain the Three Bros. Farms cagers in the fourth quarter.

Latest opponent to feel the wrath of a late Three Bros. surge was the Highland Falls Pelicans 88-72, Thursday on the Orange county court.

It was nip and tuck for two periods, with the Esopus quintet leading 18-10 at the quarter and 37-29 at half time. The Pelicans sliced the lead by six points in the third quarter, then "bong," the Farms lowered the boom with a 30-point fourth period.

Brumfield of the Pelicans led the individual heroics with 24 points, but the Three Bros. flashed the greater balance and scoring depth. Richie Mains and Harold Hutton rimmed 18 points each; Bill Hermance unloaded 15 and Frank Fiore had 10.

The Three Bros. are scheduled for a return engagement with the powerful Saugerties All Stars tonight on the upriver court. Three Bros. upset the villagers by a wide margin in their first meeting and a packed house is expected to watch tonight.

Pressed for two quarters by exploits of a star individual, the Kingston High School varsity cagers ran away from the Monticello Monties in the second half last night on the Sullivan county boards.

The impressvie 69-57 triumph was effected in the last two periods after the Monties pushed the Kiasmen, 25-28, at the half and crept to within 37-35 early in the third period.

Newburgh Academy, meanwhile, rolled over a stubborn Port Jervis quintet, 54-49, for its 31st straight victory in eighth in a row during the 1952-53 campaign.

The fact that Mickey "The Marvel" Burkoski saw only limited action because of a sprained ankle kept the tri-staters within respectable distance of the Glamorous Goldbacks.

In other action, Poughkeepsie humbled its county neighbor, Beacon, with a surprising burst of power, 88-61, and Middletown High notched its third victory with a 49-38 decision over Ellenville.

Bezemer Tops Maroon

Dick Bezemer's 19 points led Kingston but the Maroons flashed good scoring balance. Bill Haber exited in the third quarter on personals but Telepas clicked beautifully with hook shots for 16 points. Bill DuBois' set shots and running one-handers resulted in 17 points, his best harvest on the road and Skipper Brodhead accounted for 10.

Bezemer dominated the backboards and came up with 24 rebounds for a seasonal high.

The Kingston defense couldn't stop Joe Gold, the Montie ace who succeeds Irv Podhurst in the No. 1 role at that school. The flashy junior hit for a dozen fields and four singletons for 28 points.

Kingston' triumph paved the way for Tuesday night's showdown battle at Fallsburgh for second place. Kingston tied the idle comets last night at 6 wins and 2 losses. Poughkeepsie and Monticello have records of 5 wins and 3 setbacks.

Bill Huber, a NFA sub, and Larry Kimball, veteran guard, led the Goldbacks with 15 points.

Bob Dahowski unloaded 27 points and Leo Elwell had 24 in Poughkeepsie's rout of Beacon.

Bill Hurley's Jayvees moved blithely to their seventh win of the season with an easy 58-48 decision over the Monticello JVs in the prelim.

Tom Fleming took over high scoring honors for the night with 17 points. The team's best point producer, Herbie Waterous, settled for 16 and Charlie Johnson equalled that mark.

Trachtenberg of the Mounties led both clubs with 23 points.

Jump Shot Big Equalizer, Puts Little Man Among Goons in Basketball Scoring Derby

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
(NEA Sports Writer)

The spectacular jump shot is the big equalizer that's thrust the little man back into modern basketball.

Chuck Mencel of the University of Minnesota is a case in point. Only 5-10, which by basketball standards puts him in Lilliput's class, he's the Gopher's leading scorer and key backcourt threat.

A stabbing jump shot in which Chuck looks like he's about to execute a backbend put him among the goons.

"It's one of the newest shots in basketball," says the 19-year-old sophomore from Eau Claire, Wis., "and is becoming the most popular. I think it's because it gives a great advantage to the smaller man and I have found this especially true for myself."

To digress for a moment, Coach Honey Russell of unbeaten Seton Hall argues that the jump shot existed in basketball 35 years ago when he was playing pro ball.

"But it didn't become a vogue," says Honey "until little guys like Kenny Sailors of Wyoming brought it in from the west in the early 1940s.

Fulks the Greatest

"I know Bob Davies of my team used to use it, but most of the time he'd pass off when he reached the peak of his leap instead of shooting. Your true jump shooter is a man like Joe Fulks, who's a gunner. He's going for the basket and when he was at Murray State and in his first couple of years with the pros he was probably the greatest jump shooter of all time."

Fulks, of course, is 6-5. He had it made. To Mencel, perfecting a shot to overcome height deficiencies was a necessity.

Johnny O'Brien of Seattle was another small man who developed a jump shot to become a great scorer.

"If I can get one quick step on a defensive man," says Mencel, "I can always get the shot off because I'm falling away when I shoot. It's not really necesary to jump very high. I think the effectiveness lies in the quickness. A lot of fellows emphasize height too much, and this throws the shots off.

"My own version starts with a dribble to the left, which is my best side, and a quick jump releasing the ball when I am at the highest point."

Sinks From Anywhere

The great jump-shooters — fellows like Paul Arizin of Villanova and the Philadelphia Warriors—achieve a state of animated suspension at the peak. So while the defensive man who went up with him starts to descend, Arizin maintains that loft an extra moment and gets off his shot unchallenged.

How about distance? Red Auerbach of the Boston Celtics decrees against its use from more than 15 feet out. Russell backs him up. They say accuracy is affected.

Mencel, however, will toss his jump from anywhere over the center line. And sink it. Villanova's Larry Hennessy is another jump-shooter who makes any place on the floor his launching site.

"A guy like that's awful tough if he can hit from far out," Russell concedes. He's almost impossible to guard.

"It puts a lot more pressure on a defensive man. It's a shot that should never be blocked. And if you play the man loose, hoping he won't hit he'll cross you up with an outside set shot."

Sounds like the only defense is to lower the basket.

That's a switch from the old clamor of raising them.

Willimantic and Waterbury Shade Ulster Quintet

Juhl Has 2-Game Total 45 Points

The perils of basketball on the road caught up with Coach Loren D. Campbell's New Paltz State Teachers in a two-day safari into Connecticut.

Outscored by slim margins but never outclassed, the Orange dropped its second and third decisions of the season.

Waterbury tripped the county cagers, 63-55 last night, after Willimantic Teachers copped an 83-82 thriller the night before.

Thirty foul conversions kept New Paltz in the game after they had frittered away a 26-15 quarter lead and were in front 46-43 at the half.

Big Andy Juhl, nearing the end of his New Paltz career because of a draft call, unloaded 28 points against Willimantic and 17 against Waterbury.

Hot Night

Williamsburg, Va., Jan. 31 (AP)—William and Mary hit an amazing 50 per cent of its field goal attempts against Virginia Tech last night—including one that wasn't intended for a shot. Attempting to flip the ball down court on a fast break tiny guard Joe Hume pitched it 67 feet and right through the hoop. It was probably the longest field goal ever scored in Glow Gymnasium. The two points weren't really necessary. William and Mary won, 91-74.

Eagle Prexy

Philadelphia, Jan. 31 (AP) — Frank L. McNamee, city fire commissioner, has been elected president of the Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League. Chosen yesterday at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the pro club, McNamee succeeds James P. Clark, who resigned because of ill health.

5233 Is Number To Call for Latest Skiing Conditions

If you want up-to-the-minute ski information in the future, call Kingston 5233 any time of the day or night.

This new plan to keep area skiers abreast of last minute changes in weather and trail conditions at Belleayre, Highmount and Simpson's Slope at Phoenicia has been developed by the Trail Sweepers Ski Club and the Kingston Chamber of Commerce.

This service eliminates the necessity of making long distance calls to get the information and is operated as a public service to help promote skiing in the area.

The ski development operators have agreed to report changes in conditions and supply accurate information regularly. The service will be available as long as there is skiing in the central Catskill region.

Cost of the plan has been made possible by public subscriptions, but a spokesman requested that the names of sponsors be withheld.

Don't forget, the number is "5233."

Woodstock Varsity Scores 85-55 Rout Of Grahamsville

Woodstock Varsity returned to its old formula of Billy Waterous and Big Bill Kleine to overpower the Grahamsville quintet, 85-55, last night on the village court.

Shaking an extended slump, Waterous looked like his old self for the first time in weeks as he bucketed 23 points on 11 fields and a foul.

Kleine, the "Mr. Points" of the squad cashed in on 21 and Bill "Boo" Schaffer rimmed 16. D. Terbush paced the mountaineers with 17 points.

Shortly after the opening tap-off it ceased to be a contest, Woodstock running up a 27-8 quarter lead. By halftime they led 47-24. The JVs whipped Hurley 49-43 in the prelim.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

The crowd was filing out of municipal auditorium, jabbering enthusiastically about that sensational battle between Sherman White's Bombardiers and Billy Loes All Stars.

The exultation was genuine. The 700 odd spectators had seen brilliant individual exploits by an unheralded Jack "Slats" Slattery; the inimitable Sherman White and Johnny Cottrill. Not to mention Pete Dente, whose phenomenal clutch shooting for the Loes crowd might have been overlooked in that heart-gripping fourth quarter.

George Svirsky and Dr. Saul Goldfarb of the Lions Club basketball committee were loitering in the lobby like a couple of guys who just had their pants stolen and still couldn't feel any draft. They agreed that, maybe, the Lions Club hadn't made any money on the promotion. But they won friends and gave a lot of folks a thrilling spectacle; something the local professional sports scene has needed for some time.

But the most intriguing observer was the guy who is always the last to leave the auditorium—ageless Dick Williams, the one-time pitching great, custodian of the building.

Dick stood around with that faraway look in his eyes, as if he were peering through the mist over the heads of White, Cottrill and Slattery into the dim past of "Pop" Morgenweck, Carlie Husta, Tiny Hearn, the Artus brothers, Benny Borgmann and others in basketball's march of time.

If Morgenweck had been there he might have sympathized with Williams.

"This isn't basketball," he said to a guy standing near him. "Can you imagine a couple of basketball teams scoring 209 points in one game?"

"These guys shoot like crazy," he went on. "Give me the old style."

These were the words of a non-conformist, the rugged old timer who has never accepted modern fire house basketball.

"That Slattery was terrific," Dick added, "if you judge him by today's standards. But, can you imagine him cutting and driving, digging and scrapping like he did tonight in the old days against Husta, Hearn and that bunch? They would have torn him in two. When he came charging into the basket somebody would give him an elbow . . . and there'd he be . . . " Remembering the "good old days", the guy shuddered.

That's what time does to sports fans. They admire the moderns but hate to relinquish their associations with the past.

Whether that was basketball in the virginial form as intended by Dr. Naismith's peach basket is not for us to decide. As a spectacle it was a brilliant, thrilling sight. Peerless White, aggressive Slattery, a "small man" by modern concepts and Johnny Cottrill, the Hudson valley's best player.

There were rhubarbs especially on the 6th foul call against Cottrill when he was winging along with 31 points and seven minutes to go. It was the toughest of all basketball calls—as Nick Cosmos and Al Gruner will readily admit. The old story, when does a block end and a "charge" start. Such a call seldom satisfies the spectators.

This was real modern basketball; no "workout" like the performance put on by the Rochester Royals and N. Y. Rens when they "stunk out" the joint last week at IBM. There is a keen rivalry between the clubs and White was just as great as he had to be.

At half time the former LIU ace complained that the Loes Stars were riding him too hard under the boards. He can't retaliate like he desires. After all he's the big draw and it's his job to stay in the ball game. The fans are there to watch him. He barely made it, finishing with 5 fouls. But did you ever see such matchless shooting? Nearly every deuce and foul faded through the cords with that beautiful "swish" that is a symphony of joy to the basketball player's ear.

George Svirsky and the Lions Club made a tremendous effort to get the fans out. By comparison, the crowd of 700 was a slight disappointment but it lent encouragement to the future. Maybe on another night more fans would turn out to see White and Slattery. It's worth a try.

And about that firehouse style of basketball, we finally got Dick Williams to admit that he'd rather ride Cadillac than Model-T, anyday.

Cardinal Veep Probable Successor to Fred Saigh

New York, Jan. 31 (AP) — Bill Walsingham, Jr. probably will be the new owner of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Current boss Fred M. Saigh, who yesterday agreed to step out of baseball following his 15-month sentence and $15,000 fine for evasion of income tax, intimated as much today when he asserted Walsingham would be given first choice to purchase the stock.

"All things being equal," said the beleaguered Cardinal president, "Walsingham will get first consideration. Bill is a capable baseball man. He is thoroughly familiar with the inner works of the Cardinal organization and it would be of benefit to the city of St. Louis and all Cardinal fans if he were to assume control. He is a St. Louis native and worked his way up from a peanut vendor at the ball park. I'd like to see him buy the club."

Plans Indefinite

Saigh said he was not prepared to place a price on his Cardinal stock which amounts to all but seven shares.

"I honestly haven't given that matter too much thought," he said. "I am trying to do one thing at a time. First, I've got to go about selecting a three-man committee to run the club.

"Then I guess I'll be busy for awhile cleaning up my desk. This whole thing has come as such a shock to me that I haven't even had time to collect my senses.

"In the meantime I'm hoping against hope that somehow, someone in the government will take it upon himself to reopen my case. I'm convinced if they'll only take the time to check my books thoroughly they'll find no evidence of any fraud."

Walsingham, currently representing the Cardinals as vice president, expressed pleasure over Saigh's show of preference and reiterated he was keenly interested in purchasing the club.

World Champ Sledder Killed in Final Run On German Course

Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, Jan. 31 (AP)—Felix Endrich, Switzerland's world champion bob sledder, was killed here today in the crash of his four-man sled in a trial run before the start of the world championship contest.

Endrich's sled skidded over the high wall of the dangerous Bavarian curve and sailed nearly 40 feet through the air before it smashed against a tree.

Endrich, a 32-year-old office equipment salesman from Zurich, who was married only last month had won the two-man bob sled championship last weekend.

He was pulled from the sled with a shattered skull and pronounced dead on arrival at Garmisch Hospital.

Two other members of Endrich's crew, Aby Gartmann and Rene Heiland, were badly but not critically injured.

King Meets Goulart In Boston TV Clash

Boston, Jan. 31 (AP)—A pair of free-swinging middleweights who until a few months ago slugged it out in gymnasium training sessions meet tonight in a nationally televised 10-round boxing bout at Mechanics Building.

Bobby King of Everett, a rugged performer undefeated in 15 pro fights, and Charlie (Muscles) Goulart of Somerville, a knockout victor in his last nine starts, are paired in the Callahan A.C. feature due to get underway at 9 p. m. (EST). The fight will be televised nationally (ABC) with New England blacked out.

Bobsled Site

Garmisch - Partenkirchen, Germany, Jan. 31 (AP)—The 1955 world bobsled championships will be run at Lake Placid, N. Y. The site was picked early today by the International Bobsledding Federation. The current world championships are being staged here. Next year they will be at Cortina D'Ampezzo, Italy, scene of the 1956 Olympics.

Jackie Gross Faces Three Years, $500

New York, Jan. 31 (AP)—Jackie Gross, 25-year-old brother of jailed bookie Harry Gross, was convicted of perjury yesterday by a jury which deliberated less than six hours.

Jackie, whose trial started Monday, was accused of lying to a rackets probing Brooklyn grand jury which produced evidence to smash his older brother's 20 million dollars a year gambling ring. Harry Gross currently is serving a 12-year term for bookmaking.

Judge Louis Goldstein, who remanded Jackie for sentencing Feb. 16, told him:

"Now this is the last chance you and your brother will have to tell the whole story.

"You lied to save your brother. . . . (He) used you as a tool. Now he can come forward and save you by telling the truth—tell why he ran away to Atlantic City, tell what he received and from whom for wrecking the criminal trials."

Wrecked Cops' Trial

Harry Gross, on the eve of the trial of 18 policemen who allegedly accepted a million dollars annually to protect his bookie empire, jumped bail and fled to Atlantic City, N. J., where he was picked up at a race track.

Gross wrecked the criminal trial of the cops by refusing to testify, but he since has talked freely at departmental trials of accused police. Authorities charge that Gross was paid off or scared off from testifying in the criminal prosecutions.

In court yesterday, Jacob W. Friedman, attorney for Jackie, said he will try his best to get both his client and Harry Gross to "appear before any body and tell everything."

State to Try Mediating News Delivery Strike

New York, Jan. 31 (AP)—A state mediator will attempt to end the strike of some 600 magazine and newspaper deliverers which has crippled truck delivery service to wholesale newsstand dealers in New Jersey, Connecticut, Westchester county and Long Island.

After a union-dealer meeting ended in stalemate last night, State Mediator Martin Wersing said he would try to arrange another session as soon as possible.

Most of the newspapers reportedly are sending out their editions by railroad, to be picked up at the stations by local dealers.

The strike started early yesterday.

Troops Move Inland

Saigon, Indochina, Jan. 31 (AP)—Navy commandos and riflemen who captured the port of Quinhon in the biggest French amphibious landing of the long war against Communist-led Vietminh rebels in Indochina have moved inland to harass the enemy, the French high command announced today. Wading through rice fields, the French forces sought to cut the lines of communication of two Vietminh regiments menacing the French fortress of Ankhe, on an inland plateau. Ankhe is about 35 miles northwest of Quinhon.

Law Violations Uncovered

Moscow, Jan. 31 (AP) — Pravda declared today the Soviet government has uncovered serious violations of laws on the protection of state secrets. The Communist party newspaper warned that offenders aid "the enemy." One of the cases, Pravda said, involved a would-be traitor who stole a document with the intention of sending it to a foreign intelligence service. Most of the others cited—one involved a former deputy of the non-ferrous metals industry—apparently were the result of carelessness or improper use of secret material.

Program Is Jammed

Copenhagen, Denmark, Jan. 31 (AP)—A Danish state radio program dramatizing international events that led up to the present cold war was jammed last night by a mystery transmitter—believed to be Russian. The Soviet minister here earlier denounced the broadcast as an insult to his government.

Jackie Gross Faces Three Years, $500

New York, Jan. 31 (AP)—Jackie Gross, 25-year-old brother of jailed bookie Harry Gross, was convicted of perjury yesterday by a jury which deliberated less than six hours.

Jackie, whose trial started Monday, was accused of lying to a rackets probing Brooklyn grand jury which produced evidence to smash his older brother's 20 million dollars a year gambling ring. Harry Gross currently is serving a 12-year term for bookmaking.

Young Gross faces a maximum penalty of three years in prison and a $500 fine.

Judge Louis Goldstein, who remanded Jackie for sentencing Feb. 16, told him:

"Now this is the last chance you and your brother will have to tell the whole story.

"You lied to save your brother. . . . (He) used you as a tool. Now he can come forward and save you by telling the truth—tell why he ran away to Atlantic City, tell what he received and from whom for wrecking the criminal trials."

Wrecked Cops' Trial

Harry Gross, on the eve of the trial of 18 policemen who allegedly accepted a million dollars annually to protect his bookie empire, jumped bail and fled to Atlantic City, N. J., where he was picked up at a race track.

Gross wrecked the criminal trial of the cops by refusing to testify, but he since has talked freely at departmental trials of accused police. Authorities charge that Gross was paid off or scared off from testifying in the criminal prosecutions.

In court yesterday, Jacob W. Friedman, attorney for Jackie, said he will try his best to get both his client and Harry Gross to "appear before any body and tell everything."

State to Try Mediating News Delivery Strike

New York, Jan. 31 (AP)—A state mediator will attempt to end the strike of some 600 magazine and newspaper deliverers which has crippled truck delivery service to wholesale newsstand dealers in New Jersey, Connecticut, Westchester county and Long Island.

After a union-dealer meeting ended in stalemate last night, State Mediator Martin Wersing said he would try to arrange another session as soon as possible.

The walkout of members of the Independent Newspaper and Mail Deliverers Union has not affected distribution of metropolitan newspapers within the city.

Most of the newspapers reportedly are sending out their editions by railroad, to be picked up at the stations by local dealers.

The union seeks a new contract with a 37-hour work week, a $2 daily wage increase, welfare, pension and other benefits. Current wages average $92 weekly.

The strike started early yesterday.

Troops Move Inland

Saigon, Indochina, Jan. 31 (AP)—Navy commandos and riflemen who captured the port of Quinhon in the biggest French amphibious landing of the long war against Communist-led Vietminh rebels in Indochina have moved inland to harass the enemy, the French high command announced today. Wading through rice fields, the French forces sought to cut the lines of communication of two Vietminh regiments menacing the French fortress of Ankhe, on an inland plateau. Ankhe is about 35 miles northwest of Quinhon.

Law Violations Uncovered

Moscow, Jan. 31 (AP) — Pravda declared today the Soviet government has uncovered serious violations of laws on the protection of state secrets. The Communist party newspaper warned that offenders aid "the enemy." One of the cases, Pravda said, involved a would-be traitor who stole a document with the intention of sending it to a foreign intelligence service. Most of the others cited—one involved a former deputy of the non-ferrous metals industry—apparently were the result of carelessness or improper use of secret material.

Program Is Jammed

Copenhagen, Denmark, Jan. 31 (AP)—A Danish state radio program dramatizing international events that led up to the present cold war was jammed last night by a mystery transmitter—believed to be Russian. The Soviet minister here earlier denounced the broadcast as an insult to his government.

Three More Teachers Suspended for Silence

New York, Jan. 31 (AP)—Three more public school teachers have been suspended for refusing to answer questions about alleged Communist party membership.

The three suspended yesterday by William Jansen, superintendent of schools, were: Minna Finkelstein, 43, a kindergarten teacher in the Bronx; Mildred Gorssman, 36, Manhattan High School instructor; and Abraham Squire, 47, Brooklyn Junior High School teacher.

There was no immediate comment from the teachers, who will face departmental charges and possible ouster from their jobs.

Similar trials have resulted in the dismissal of 15 teachers during the past two years.

Benedictine Hospital Gives Report

ever, we have covered everything that is essential. Now the prompt payment of the recent campaign pledges will help us to meet our obligations.

Superintendent's Report

The highlights of the year 1952 for the Benedictine Hospital was the dedication and blessing of the new additions by His Eminence, Francis Cardinal Spellman, on Saturday, April 26, a day on which we received both spiritual and temporal blessings, the latter when His Eminence presented the generous check of $10,000 to the building fund of the Benedictine Hospital. May God reward His Eminence for his great charity. It was also a day of great achievement that will long be remembered by the personnel, friends and benefactors of the hospital.

The review of the activities for 1952 reports continued progress in both the medical and nursing care of the patients. Medical knowledge, techniques and diagnosis and treatment, have developed at an outstanding rapid pace which results in a saving of lives, but also requires more costly equipment, medications and more highly trained personnel.

In 1952 our cost per diem was almost double the amount of 1952, ten years ago. The salary and wages in 1952 amounted to 55% of the total operating expense and in 1942 they amounted to 29%. The patient, however, receives compensation which outweighs the increased cost of hospitalization. Today the hospital stay of the patient is very much shortened. In 1952 the average stay was 7 3/5 days—in 1942 it was 10¼ days. This permits wage earners to return to their jobs in a much shorter time, thus helping to offset the higher cost of each day's stay.

We are grateful to our medical staff for their fine cooperation and their essential contribution to the work of the hospital and the school of nursing. It was with great regret that we released Doctor Lo Galbo for the armed forces. Last year doctor was admitted to the courtesy staff and this year, before leaving, he had requested that he be advanced to the active staff.

The one man who above all others has borne the brunt of the trying period of construction is our president, Monsignor Drury. Since the breaking of ground and even before his numerous, arduous duties have been multiplied by the many problems that accompany a building program. It is a tribute, not only to his ability, but to his diplomacy, energy, and good nature that he has been able to stand erect and retain his effectiveness under such trying conditions.

In these days of turmoil and unrest patients are keen to observe the beneficial effect of a spiritual atmosphere while ill. The Benedictine Hospital is fortunate in having a resident chaplain, Rev. Father Carey, who ministers to the spiritual care of the patients.

Many new members are being admitted to the Novitiate of our Mother House in Elizabeth, N. J. At present two of our nurses are among the number. This will be a great asset and augurs well for the future of the hospital. This noted increase in our community is due to the foresight and vision of our Very Rev. Mother Vincent who is most solicitous for the continued growth and development of our schools and hospital.

Appreciation Expressed

We express our appreciation to the mayor and the department of public works for their fine cooperation particularly at the time of our dedication; to Chief Murphy for his interest and advice during construction; for the continued services of the Junior League; to the needlecraft class at the high school; to the merchants for their constant willingness to contribute to our cause; last, but not least, the local press for the splendid space given to our various problems.

Much credit is due to the Ladies' Auxiliary with Mrs. John Cooke as president for its continued active and helpful support. The annual Easter Ball was a success and more than half of their pledge of $12,000 to the Building Fund of the Benedictine Hospital was realized through a unique plan of giving away a Chevrolet car. Mrs. Allen Baker and Mrs. Walter Foster were co-chairmen of this latter project. The New Year's dance of the junior auxiliary received the usual support from the public. We thank both our auxiliaries for their fine cooperation.

Alterations in the northeast and center wings are nearly completed. The chapel is waiting for three stained glass windows and new pews. Almost completed are the diet kitchen, nurses' lockers, rest rooms and lavatories on the third and ground floors, medicine and fracture rooms on the second floor, emergency, autopsy and storage facilities on the ground floor. We are now in the process of painting and redecorating the rooms, halls and stairs in the northeast wing.

The national accounting system has been installed in the accounting department to obtain more expeditious results.

For safety and protection flood lights have been placed on the roof near the front entrance and at the side of the northeast and southwest corners of the building.

Several items that had been omitted from the general contract on account of not wanting to increase the initial cost has been taken care of as the time seemed opportune.

Of significant importance and responsibility is our outstanding mortgage for $450,000, the interest of which must be met quarterly each year.

Nurses' Residence

Another great concern of equal magnitude is our great need for a nurses' residence. We probably would not have spoken of this problem now had not the National League for Nursing recently given our school special recognition. Over a year ago the school was visited and surveyed for the purpose of receiving national accreditation. At the time we feared the result on account of our several small buildings with no modern facilities for education and recreation. However, much to our surprise, we received a communication informing us that our school of nursing had been placed on the temporary accreditation list for five years. A number of recommendations were given us to carry out during this period. Among them particularly was the erection of a nurses' residence. This accreditation is a great honor conferred on our school of nursing. Nearly all of the 1,139 schools in the country were covered in the survey but one out of every four schools failed to receive the stamp of approval. We are all aware of the need for the professional graduate nurse particularly now that our hospital has raised its bed capacity to over two hundred. Epidemics, too, strike when least expected like the recent polio siege at which time the Benedictine was glad to allocate rooms for the polio patient. The news of the accreditation was particularly pleasing to Sister Callista and the faculty as it is due to their efforts that the school of nursing has been approved by the national organization.

The sudden passing of our dear Sister Delphine was a great shock to our entire personnel. Sister had endeared herself to all.

It is over a year since our recent campaign closed and we often recall with gratitude to God the great tribute of approval and support given by the citizens of Kingston and all Ulster county, when they responded so willingly and generously to the call of our president, Monsignor Drury, Senator Wicks, James Dwyer, George Kaufman, and other leaders to work for the Benedictine cause. It was this fine response as well as their generosity to our two earlier campaigns that had made possible the erection of the new Benedictine and now gives us courage to go forward with further plans for the erection of a nurses' residence in the future.

Recent Campaign

We are now happy to give a report to date on our recent campaign.

There have been 851 new pledges received of which we mention the outstanding contribution of His Eminence, Cardinal Francis Spellman—$10,000.

The following legacies are also included:

Elsa Mason Lord Peabody—$5,000.
Morris Samter—$2,000.
Walter L. Fales—$2,125.
John H. Smith—$1,250.

The above with other new pledges amounts to—$37,988.89.

Pledges at the close of the campaign—$310,828.40.

Total amount thus far paid amounts to—$196,549.32.

Balance due—$152,267.97.

We appreciate the promptness with which our many friends have met their pledges and we trust this same spirit will continue so that we will be able to meet our obligation in paying off our mortgage. We realize that at the time of the campaign there must have been a number of citizens who for one reason or another were unable to make a pledge and we will appreciate hearing from them. We feel certain these friends will also be glad to contribute, be it ever so small, to the hospital that is now completed and serving the community.

Our highest praise is due to the entire personnel for their fine spirit and loyal support, also for their efforts in helping to create an atmosphere so congenial and friendly that our patients are always conscious of our continued interest in their welfare.

School of Nursing Report

The year 1952 has been one in which a sincere effort has been made for continued improvement in our educational program and in the nursing care of our patients.

We are gratified to have our school accredited by the National Nursing Accrediting Service. Major items considered by the Board of Review of the National Nursing Accrediting Service were: The stability, qualifications and adequacy of the faculty, the quality of nursing care, educational resources of the school, i.e. library, laboratory equipment and other teaching aids; attrition rates—in relation to the outcomes on State Board examinations and curriculum planning by the whole faculty.

Our faculty has been kept busy during the past year with various projects aside from their regular teaching duties. A new and attractive announcement or catalog of the School of Nursing has been published and is just off the press. This entailed many hours of hard work, attendance at meetings, rewriting and revising until it met with the approval of the entire faculty. This group has also formulated a set of constitution and by-laws for faculty organizations.

The problem of staffing our enlarged hospital was somewhat augmented by the fact that 21 of our 24 graduates of the class of 1952 asked to be assigned to our general duty staff.

Miss Agatha Grunenwald, the former night supervisor, was appointed to the position of clinical instructor, to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Miss Elizabeth Dunn, who has gone to the New York Medical Center for more experience. Miss Grunenwald is one of our own graduates, and has a B.S. degree in nursing education from St. John's University, Brooklyn.

Sister Concilia resumed the duties of supervisor upon her return, after graduating from Seton Hall University, with a B.S. in nursing education. Sister is in charge of second floor South Wing, and is assisting with the educational program.

Miss Arlene Baliszewski has been employed as nursing arts assistant, while Miss Zanni has gone to New York for additional experience and courses at St. John's University.

The enrollment in our school as of January 1, 1953, is as follows:

Seniors	19
Intermediates	16
Pre-Clinical	22
Total	57

There were three resignations in our student group, one student left because of ill health, one left to be married, and one because of poor scholarship.

On September 7th we graduated 24 students. Miss Arlene Baliszewski, having attained the highest average in her class, 91.1% was awarded the scholarship. The class average for State Board examinations was 86.1% (despite two failures in the group of 24).

We lament the loss of our dear Sister Delphine who for 23 years was supervisor of the operating room, also our good friend, the late B. C. Van Ingen, who for so many years was a member of our School of Nursing Committee.

May we express our deep appreciation to the faculty, the nursing personnel, the medical staff and the Reverend Clergy of Mt. St. Alphonsus and to all, who have so generously assisted in our teaching program. The Ladies' Auxiliary and the Nurses Alumnae Association too, have been most loyal and have as in former years entertained our graduating class and have contributed to the scholarship fund. We wish to extend our gratitude to our worthy President, the Right Reverend Martin J. Drury, for his continued and untiring interest in our school, and to the School of Nursing Committee, we are most grateful for their assistance and cooperation.

Lewis Elected Again

Washington, Jan. 31 (AP)—John L. Lewis has been elected to another four-year term as president of the United Mineworkers of America. Union headquarters announced yesterday that the 73-year-old labor leader, president since 1920, got 294,263 votes in the uncontested election—largest vote for the office in the union's history.

Benedictine Hospital Gives Report

ever, we have covered everything that is essential. Now the prompt payment of the recent campaign pledges will help us to meet our obligations.

Recent Campaign

We are now happy to give a report to date on our recent campaign.

There have been 851 new pledges received of which we mention the outstanding contribution of His Eminence, Cardinal Francis Spellman—$10,000.

The following legacies are also included:

Elsa Mason Lord Peabody—$5,000.

Morris Samter—$2,000.

Walter L. Fales—$2,125.

John H. Smith—$1,250.

The above with other new pledges amounts to—$37,988.89.

Pledges at the close of the campaign—$310,828.40.

Total amount of pledges—$348,817.29.

Total amount thus far paid amounts to—$196,549.32.

Balance due—$152,267.97.

We appreciate the promptness with which our many friends have met their pledges and we trust this same spirit will continue so that we will be able to meet our obligation in paying off our mortgage. We realize that at the time of the campaign there must have been a number of citizens who for one reason or another were unable to make a pledge and we will appreciate hearing from them. We feel certain these friends will also be glad to contribute, be it ever so small, to the hospital that is now completed and serving the community.

Our highest praise is due to the entire personnel for their fine spirit and loyal support, also for their efforts in helping to create an atmosphere so congenial and friendly that our patients are always conscious of our continued interest in their welfare.

School of Nursing Report

The year 1952 has been one in which a sincere effort has been made for continued improvement in our educational program and in the nursing care of our patients.

We are gratified to have our school accredited by the National Nursing Accrediting Service. Major items considered by the Board of Review of the National Nursing Accrediting Service were: The stability, qualifications and adequacy of the faculty, the quality of nursing care, educational resources of the school, i.e. library, laboratory equipment and other teaching aids; attrition rates—in relation to the outcomes on State Board examinations and curriculum planning by the whole faculty.

Our faculty has been kept busy during the past year with various projects aside from their regular teaching duties. A new and attractive announcement or catalog of the School of Nursing has been published and is just off the press. This entailed many hours of hard work, attendance at meetings, rewriting and revising until it met with the approval of the entire faculty. This group has also formulated a set of constitution and by-laws for faculty organizations.

The problem of staffing our enlarged hospital was somewhat augmented by the fact that 21 of our 24 graduates of the class of 1952 asked to be assigned to our general duty staff.

Miss Agatha Grunenwald, the former night supervisor, was appointed to the position of clinical instructor, to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Miss Elizabeth Dunn, who has gone to the New York Medical Center for more experience. Miss Grunenwald is one of our own graduates, and has a B.S. degree in nursing education from St. John's University, Brooklyn.

Sister Concilia resumed the duties of supervisor upon her return, after graduating from Seton Hall University, with a B.S. in nursing education. Sister is in charge of second floor South Wing, and is assisting with the educational program.

Miss Arlene Baliszewski has been employed as nursing arts assistant, while Miss Zanni has gone to New York for additional experience and courses at St. John's University.

The enrollment in our school as of January 1, 1953, is as follows:

Seniors	19
Intermediates	16
Pre-Clinical	22
Total	57

There were three resignations in our student group, one student left because of ill health, one left to be married, and one because of poor scholarship.

On September 7th we graduated 24 students. Miss Arlene Baliszewski, having attained the highest average in her class, 91.1% was awarded the scholarship. The class average for State Board examinations was 86.1% (despite two failures in the group of 24).

We lament the loss of our dear Sister Delphine who for 23 years was supervisor of the operating room, also our good friend, the late B. C. Van Ingen, who for so many years was a member of our School of Nursing Committee.

May we express our deep appreciation to the faculty, the nursing personnel, the medical staff and the Reverend Clergy of Mt. St. Alphonsus and to all, who have so generously assisted in our teaching program. The Ladies' Auxiliary and the Nurses Alumnae Association too, have been most loyal and have as in former years entertained our graduating class and have contributed to the scholarship fund. We wish to extend our gratitude to our worthy President, the Right Reverend Martin J. Drury, for his continued and untiring interest in our school, and to the School of Nursing Committee, we are most grateful for their assistance and cooperation.

Power Is Restored After Tree Falls on Port Ewen Lines

Most of the village of Port Ewen was without power for approximately an hour this morning when a tree dropped across a power line near the village library.

It was reported that a section of an old elm tree, which was being taken down by a Port Ewen contractor, fell against the lines about 8 a. m.

Edwin T. Strong, district manager of the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp., said most of the village was without power for about an hour, current being restored about 9 a. m. Power was restored to a section of the village within 15 minutes, however.

The tree was located on the east side of Route 9W near the library and the property of Dr. Arthur J. Friedman.

Real Estate Returned

Tokyo (AP)—More than 40 million dollars worth of Japanese real estate confiscated for use by occupation forces was returned to original owners during 1952, the Far East Command announced recently. Another 10 million dollars worth of property probably will be returned during the next three months the army said. So far 102 major buildings and 381 private homes have been given back to Japanese owners.

Civilization Sought

London (AP) — A British expedition has left for the 1,000-year-old sacred city of Ile-Ife in Nigeria, West Africa, to search for the buried remains of an unknown civilization. The British museum said the archeologists will dig beneath Ile-Ife's mud-built palaces and homes bronze heads and terra cotta reliefs first discovered there in 1910 by the German explorer, Leo Frobenius. Other art objects were found near a palace in 1938.

Victims of Drouth

Tunis, Tunisia, Jan. 31 (AP)—A merciless drouth in the southern half of this French North African protectorate has reduced a fifth of Tunisia's population to abject misery. Some 700,000 nomads and peasants are victims of the drouth.

Possible Formosa Move Arouses Great Britain

London, Jan. 31 (AP)—President Eisenhower's reported plan to end the U. S. Navy's neutralizing blockade of Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese Nationalist forces on Formosa aroused concern today in official British quarters.

Informed sources stressed that Britain expects to be fully consulted about any basic change of American policy in the Orient.

Lord Beaverbrook's pro-empire Daily Express carried this banner: "Ike move alarms Britain. Chiang may get go-ahead to raid China."

The conservative Daily Mail said:

"Ike may pull out Formosa fleet to free Chiang."

The foreign office said it had no comment at the present time.

Steel Strike Cuts Into Tax Receipts

Earnings reports for 1952, now pouring in, show that steel company profits fell around 22 per cent below the 1951 figures.

But tax payments for 1952 will be down about 69 per cent.

The returns to date indicate that the U. S. Treasry may get around one billion dollars less from steel companies than it collected in income and excess profits taxes from them in 1951.

There is also a hefty tax refund indicated. Under the Excess Profits Act, the companies (because of the earnings drop in 1952) can get refunds on part of the excess profits tax paid on 1951 earnings. Reports to date show that these refunds will run well up in the millions.

Stockholders see the earnings of the companies they own dropping in 1952, but so far there has been no cut in dividend rates by the major companies.

Much of the drop in earnings is blamed on the strike, which whacked some two months of operations off the year. But some other factors enter in.

Took Out for Building

For one thing, iron and steel companies spent more than one billion dollars last year to expand and improve their plants, the American Iron and Steel Institute reports.

A sizable part of this expansion will go into production this year. Last year it was an expense—although ameliorated in many instances by fast amortization granted for defense construction. This year the new facilities will be productive.

For another thing, while the last three months of 1952 showed most of the companies setting new records for output and for dollar volume of sales (helped by the price hike that followed the strike), only a few of the companies also show better earnings than in the final three months of 1951.

Steel officials this week have been stressing that their costs (including the wage hike that ended the strike) went up even more than their sales volume. Thus, most of them show even fourth quarter profits running behind the previous year.

None said, however, that he was actively campaigning for another price boost.

12 Companies Report

Twelve companies — including seven of the largest—have reported earnings so far. Combined these total $369,530,562. This was a drop of $107,522,968, or 22.5 per cent, from their 1951 profit total of $477,053,530.

Eight of the companies also published their federal tax setasides together they expect to pay into the U. S. Treasury $269,070,000. But in 1951 these same eight companies gave Uncle Sam $860,388,000 in corporate income and excess profit taxes.

This drop of $591,318,000, or 68.7 per cent, includes about 37 million dollars in credits for refunds on excess profit taxes paid in 1951.

Million Dollar Drop

Steel company accountants figure that when the entire industry is heard from, this drop in federal tax payments will reach, and probably top, one billion dollars.

Prospects for 1953 appear brighter, however. Steel executives stress that their backlog of orders indicate full operations for months to come. New facilities will be in use.

High operating costs may hold down profits, but no such drastic drop in earnings as in 1952 is anticipated—unless there's more labor trouble.

Lewis Optimistic Over Valley Future

Howard A. Lewis, vice-president of the Nash-Kelvinator Corp. of Detroit, addressed a special luncheon meeting of the board of directors of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce at the Governor Clinton Hotel yesterday.

Lewis, who resides at 12 West Chestnut street, spoke optimistically of the industrial future of the Hudson valley, particularly the area between Bear Mountain and Schenectady on the west side of the Hudson river. His remarks were recorded and will be presented over Radio Station WKNY at 5:45 p. m. today.

Adrian Kaplan, president of the Chamber, presided and Bev. C. Anderson, chairman of the committee on arrangements, introduced the speaker.

Denies Texaco to Move

A report that the Texas Company was planning to move its local plant away from Kingston was termed "not true" by a local spokesman for the company today. The concern is located at 274 East Strand.

Congress Seen . . .

MacArthur testified before Congress that he strongly advocated (1) a naval blockade of the Communist-held China coast, (2) the use of Chiang's Formosa forces and (3) air action against Communist supply and communications centers north of the Yalu river. Truman and other Democratic administration leaders contended this would broaden the war and possibly lead to another global conflict.

The general understanding in Congress was that Eisenhower would make it clear that Chiang will be strictly on his own in any hit-and-run raids he may make against the mainland.

Has 1,000 Pilots

The Nationalist leader has a force of about 1,000 trained pilots on Formosa, but they outnumber the planes of all types he has available. And his air force, such as it is, was designed primarily for the defense of the island with concentration on fighters instead of bombers.

The U. S. has been helping build up this force, as well as other military branches, with about a half billion dollars worth of direct military aid assigned to Chiang since the outbreak of the Korean war.

The Nationalists have been given some small coastal vessels, but whether they have any warships of the size necessary to support even a commando foray on the mainland remains a military secret.

Republicans in Congress generally applauded the proposed reversal of the Truman policy of sealing off Formosa, where Chiang is credited with having up to 600,000 men in uniform.

Democrats generally indicated they will go along, although some expressed misgivings.

Morse Dissents

Sen. Morse (Ind.-Ore.) attacked it vigorously, asserting that if the move is made it may go down in history as "a sly tactic for encouraging incidents that may start Word War 3." Morse bolted the GOP during the presidential campaign.

Sen. Taft of Ohio, the Republican leader, said: "It seems to me it will be a step in the right direction and about as long a step as we should make at this time."

Sen, Ferguson (R.-Mich.), a Foreign Relations Committee member, said he had always felt it was "bad policy to keep the Chinese Nationalists frozen on Formosa."

Sen. Fulbright (D.-Ark.), another Foreign Relations member, observed that if the nation's top military leaders say the move is feasible "I wouldn't quarrel with the plan."

"But what do we do if the Reds try to invade Formosa?" He asked.

Dulles Arrives

this morning aboard President Eisenhower's personal plane, and went at once into an hour-long talk with U. S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and Chauncey C. Parker, head of the mutual security administration for Italy.

They then called on President Luigi Einaudi, and afterward went straight to the Italian government. They began conferences with the Italian cabinet, closed-door talks with De Gasperi, and joint conferences between Italian government leaders and heads of the American missions in Rome.

They will leave tomorrow morning for Paris, after dinner and a long private talk tonight with the Italian premier.

The EDC treaty to weld the armies of Italy, France, West Germany, The Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg into a joint one-uniform defense force was signed eight months ago but has not been ratified by any of the participating countries.

Dulles and Stassen will visit each of these six nations, plus Britain, on their flying tour.

Stolen Auto Is Involved in Crash

An automobile reported stolen early today from New Paltz was later involved in an accident at Bloomville near Delhi, state police of Highland were informed.

Troopers said that Charles Randall, Jr., of RFD 1, New Paltz reported his automobile stolen some time between 1:30 and 3 a. m. today.

Gardiner Man Involved

The same vehicle later this morning was reported involved in an automobile accident in Delaware county, troopers said, and its operator was said to have been taken to a hospital in Stamford for treatment of a broken leg. Troopers at Highland said the driver had been identified as Arthur Davis, age unknown, of Gardiner, and revealed they were preparing to place a grand larceny charge against him.

Missing in Fire

Pusan, Jan. 31 (AP) — Eighteen Koreans were reported missing today in the wake of Pusan's most destructive fire. Authorities officially estimated the loss at 11 million dollars. The fire burned out one square mile in the heart of this war-jammed provisional capital and strategic port city. An estimated 1,500 stores and homes, most of them ramshackle frame structures, were razed.

Wonsan Hit Hard By Planes, Guns From Mighty Mo

Swarms of Planes Roar off Carriers in Big Attack on Once Great Port

Seoul, Jan. 31 (AP)—Planes from three U. S. carriers and the big guns of the battleship Missouri—the Mighty Mo—today dumped destruction on the northeast Korean port of Wonsan, already rubbled by the longest siege in American naval history.

The navy said that Vice Adm. James Clark, U. S. Seventh Fleet commander, planned and was watching the big attack from the Missouri.

Two destroyers joined the massive bombardment against the once-great east coast metropolis.

Swarms of planes were roaring off the decks of the big carriers Kearsarge, Oriskany and Philippine Sea in what the navy termed "vicious bombardment" and "an all-out aerial bombardment." By late afternoon, no details had been released.

The weather was clear. But a thin layer of ice coated the decks on the Mighty Mo.

Nine Below On Front

On the ground, Eighth Army Headquarters reported only scattered patrol skirmishes as the mercury dipped below zero for the second day over the 155-mile line. The western front was the coldest—nine below zero.

The air force reported five UN warplanes, including a B-29 Superfort bomber, were lost this week over North Korea as against six MIGs. A Superfort normally carries a crew of 11 men.

One F-86 Sabre jet was shot down in a dogfight with Communist MIGs, and enemy ground fire knocked down an F-80 Shooting Star jet. A Sabre and an Australian Meteor jet were lost to "other causes," probably mechanical trouble.

Starts at Sunrise

The Missouri opened the attack on Wonsan shortly after sunrise. The warship's secondary batteries laid down a protective fire to discourage Communist shore gunners in the harbor area. The navy said there was no answering fire.

Carrier planes then streaked over the port. The action is the first for the Philippine Sea since the carrier returned to Korean waters for its third tour of duty.

Rear Adm. Robert Hickey was aboard the Task Force 77 flagship, the carrier Kearsarge.

Largest Siege in History

The navy said the city of Wonsan has been in a state of siege since Feb. 16, 1951, making this "by far the longest effective siege in United States naval history." The siege of Vicksburg during the Civil War stands next on the list, the navy said.

Wonsan was described as a blackened mass, marked only by columns which formerly were the smokestacks of busy industrial plants, the navy said. The city, which once boasted a population of 100,000, grew into industrial importance because its harbor was ice-free throughout the year.

Tells About . . .

contradictory testimony of McQuade and McCormack.

ILA President Ryan, 68, insisted that waterfront crime is "greatly exaggerated" and that there is no more of it along the docks than elsewhere in New York.

While conceding that it is possible 30 per cent of his ILA officers have police records, Ryan said he was not aware of any wholesale infiltration of the ILA by hoodlums, gangsters and exconvicts.

However, Ryan earlier had admitted that he was powerless to bring about the ouster in 1940 of mobsters who took over three Brooklyn ILA locals. The hoodlums allegedly were members of the notorious kill-for-hire gang, Murder, Inc.

Ryan also was questioned about $241,097 which the commission said he collected from various ILA sources in the five years ended last September. His regular ILA salary during that time was $100,000 of the total.

The ILA president said the figure included expenses of his fight on communism on the piers, a fight which he said was financed by donations from shipping firms.

A commission tabulation, put on the record, showed Ryan spent ILA money on such items as Cadillacs, $12,494; a cruise to Guatemala, $460; golf club dues and charges, $1,332; the burial of a sister-in-law, $478; and a Stork Club luncheon, $546.

Ryan said these items were paid for out of the anti-Communist fund, but he asserted that he later made good the expenditures out of his personal checking account.

Death of Woman

the Kingston city laboratory indicated that Harriet Martin was intoxicated, District Attorney St. John revealed. Vital organs have been sent to the state police laboratory for further analysis.

Highway workers found the dying woman lying in a ditch along the Granite road about 8:15 a. m. Wednesday. A shotgun was found some distance away, but examination of the body disclosed no marks of violence, state police reported.

Oulton, Hutter Due In States Sunday

Two Kingston veterans, Sgt. Donald P. Oulton, 149 West O'Reilly street and Pfc. George R. Hutter, 51 Harwick street, are due to arrive in Seattle, Wash., Sunday, the Associated Press reported this morning.

Sgt. Oulton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank T. Oulton, has been in Korea eight months.

The AP report said the Navy Transport Marine Phoenix was due to dock at Seattle tomorrow with 2,986 army men returning from the Far East.

Jenner also is expected to lead an investigation of alleged Communist infiltration of U. S. members of the United Nations staff.

Sen. Tobey (R.-N. H.), told the Senate he would use part of the $75,000 given his Commerce Committee for an investigation of organized interstate crime on the nation's waterfronts. His objective, he said, is to "clean these rats" of the underworld from ports in New York, New Jersey, Louisiana, California and elsewhere.

Tobey's committee also got permission to spend nearly $31,000 in completing investigations of the Interstate Commerce Commission and of transport and communications facilities.

Also voted was a total of more than $237,000 for investigations and studies of immigration problems, alleged waste in the defense effort, the alien property custodian's office, the economic controls law, banking, housing and related problems and government manpower.

Power Is Restored After Tree Falls on Port Ewen Lines

Most of the village of Port Ewen was without power for approximately an hour this morning when a tree dropped across a power line near the village library.

It was reported that a section of an old elm tree, which was being taken down by a Port Ewen contractor, fell against the lines about 8 a. m.

Edwin T. Strong, district manager of the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp., said most of the village was without power for about an hour, current being restored about 9 a. m. Power was restored to a section of the village within 15 minutes, however.

The tree was located on the east side of Route 9W near the library and the property of Dr. Arthur J. Friedman.

Real Estate Returned

Tokyo (AP)—More than 40 million dollars worth of Japanese real estate confiscated for use by occupation forces was returned to original owners during 1952, the Far East Command announced recently. Another 10 million dollars worth of property probably will be returned during the next three months the army said. So far 102 major buildings and 381 private homes have been given back to Japanese owners.

Civilization Sought

London (AP) — A British expedition has left for the 1,000-year-old sacred city of Ile-Ife in Nigeria, West Africa, to search for the buried remains of an unknown civilization. The British museum said the archeologists will dig beneath Ile-Ife's mud-built palaces and homes bronze heads and terra cotta reliefs first discovered there in 1910 by the German explorer, Leo Frobenius. Other art objects were found near a palace in 1938.

Victims of Drouth

Tunis, Tunisia, Jan. 31 (AP)—A merciless drouth in the southern half of this French North African protectorate has reduced a fifth of Tunisia's population to abject misery. Some 700,000 nomads and peasants are victims of the drouth.

Possible Formosa Move Arouses Great Britain

London, Jan. 31 (AP)—President Eisenhower's reported plan to end the U. S. Navy's neutralizing blockade of Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese Nationalist forces on Formosa aroused concern today in official British quarters.

Informed sources stressed that Britain expects to be fully consulted about any basic change of American policy in the Orient.

Lord Beaverbrook's pro-empire Daily Express carried this banner: "Ike move alarms Britain. Chiang may get go-ahead to raid China."

The conservative Daily Mail said:

"Ike may pull out Formosa fleet to free Chiang."

The foreign office said it had no comment at the present time.

Steel Strike Cuts Into Tax Receipts

New York, Jan. 31 (AP)—Uncle Sam appears today to be taking a worse beating than the stockholders as a result of last summer's steel strike.

Earnings reports for 1952, now pouring in, show that steel company profits fell around 22 per cent below the 1951 figures.

But tax payments for 1952 will be down about 69 per cent.

The returns to date indicate that the U. S. Treasry may get around one billion dollars less from steel companies than it collected in income and excess profits taxes from them in 1951.

There is also a hefty tax refund indicated. Under the Excess Profits Act, the companies (because of the earnings drop in 1952) can get refunds on part of the excess profits tax paid on 1951 earnings. Reports to date show that these refunds will run well up in the millions.

Stockholders see the earnings of the companies they own dropping in 1952, but so far there has been no cut in dividend rates by the major companies.

Much of the drop in earnings is blamed on the strike, which whacked some two months of operations off the year. But some other factors enter in.

Took Out for Building

For one thing, iron and steel companies spent more than one billion dollars last year to expand and improve their plants, the American Iron and Steel Institute reports.

A sizable part of this expansion will go into production this year. Last year it was an expense—although ameliorated in many instances by fast amortization granted for defense construction. This year the new facilities will be productive.

For another thing, while the last three months of 1952 showed most of the companies setting new records for output and for dollar volume of sales (helped by the price hike that followed the strike), only a few of the companies also show better earnings than in the final three months of 1951.

Steel officials this week have been stressing that their costs (including the wage hike that ended the strike) went up even more than their sales volume. Thus, most of them show even fourth quarter profits running behind the previous year.

None said, however, that he was actively campaigning for another price boost.

12 Companies Report

Twelve companies — including seven of the largest—have reported earnings so far. Combined these total $369,530,562. This was a drop of $107,522,968, or 22.5 per cent, from their 1951 profit total of $477,053,530.

Eight of the companies also published their federal tax setasides together they expect to pay into the U. S. Treasury $269,070,000. But in 1951 these same eight companies gave Uncle Sam $860,388,000 in corporate income and excess profit taxes.

This drop of $591,318,000, or 68.7 per cent, includes about 37 million dollars in credits for refunds on excess profit taxes paid in 1951.

Million Dollar Drop

Steel company accountants figure that when the entire industry is heard from, this drop in federal tax payments will reach, and probably top, one billion dollars.

Prospects for 1953 appear brighter, however. Steel executives stress that their backlog of orders indicate full operations for months to come. New facilities will be in use.

High operating costs may hold down profits, but no such drastic drop in earnings as in 1952 is anticipated—unless there's more labor trouble.

Lewis Optimistic Over Valley Future

Howard A. Lewis, vice-president of the Nash-Kelvinator Corp. of Detroit, addressed a special luncheon meeting of the board of directors of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce at the Governor Clinton Hotel yesterday.

Lewis, who resides at 12 West Chestnut street, spoke optimistically of the industrial future of the Hudson valley, particularly the area between Bear Mountain and Schenectady on the west side of the Hudson river. His remarks were recorded and will be presented over Radio Station WKNY at 5:45 p. m. today.

Adrian Kaplan, president of the Chamber, presided and Bev. C. Anderson, chairman of the committee on arrangements, introduced the speaker.

Denies Texaco to Move

A report that the Texas Company was planning to move its local plant away from Kingston was termed "not true" by a local spokesman for the company today. The concern is located at 274 East Strand.

Congress Seen . . .

MacArthur testified before Congress that he strongly advocated (1) a naval blockade of the Communist-held China coast, (2) the use of Chiang's Formosa forces and (3) air action against Communist supply and communications centers north of the Yalu river. Truman and other Democratic administration leaders contended this would broaden the war and possibly lead to another global conflict.

The general understanding in Congress was that Eisenhower would make it clear that Chiang will be strictly on his own in any hit-and-run raids he may make against the mainland.

It was not known what plans the administration might have for the U. S. fleet to ward off possible Chinese Communist attacks against Formosa.

Has 1,000 Pilots

The Nationalist leader has a force of about 1,000 trained pilots on Formosa, but they outnumber the planes of all types he has available. And his air force, such as it is, was designed primarily for the defense of the island with concentration on fighters instead of bombers.

The U. S. has been helping build up this force, as well as other military branches, with about a half billion dollars worth of direct military aid assigned to Chiang since the outbreak of the Korean war.

The Nationalists have been given some small coastal vessels, but whether they have any warships of the size necessary to support even a commando foray on the mainland remains a military secret.

Republicans in Congress generally applauded the proposed reversal of the Truman policy of sealing off Formosa, where Chiang is credited with having up to 600,000 men in uniform.

Democrats generally indicated they will go along, although some expressed misgivings.

Morse Dissents

Sen. Morse (Ind.-Ore.) attacked it vigorously, asserting that if the move is made it may go down in history as "a sly tactic for encouraging incidents that may start Word War 3." Morse bolted the GOP during the presidential campaign.

Sen. Taft of Ohio, the Republican leader, said: "It seems to me it will be a step in the right direction and about as long a step as we should make at this time."

Sen, Ferguson (R.-Mich.), a Foreign Relations Committee member, said he had always felt it was "bad policy to keep the Chinese Nationalists frozen on Formosa."

Sen. Fulbright (D.-Ark.), another Foreign Relations member, observed that if the nation's top military leaders say the move is feasible "I wouldn't quarrel with the plan."

"But what do we do if the Reds try to invade Formosa?" He asked.

Dulles Arrives

this morning aboard President Eisenhower's personal plane, and went at once into an hour-long talk with U. S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and Chauncey C. Parker, head of the mutual security administration for Italy.

They then called on President Luigi Einaudi, and afterward went straight to the Italian government. They began conferences with the Italian cabinet, closed-door talks with De Gasperi, and joint conferences between Italian government leaders and heads of the American missions in Rome.

They will leave tomorrow morning for Paris, after dinner and a long private talk tonight with the Italian premier.

The EDC treaty to weld the armies of Italy, France, West Germany, The Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg into a joint one-uniform defense force was signed eight months ago but has not been ratified by any of the participating countries.

Dulles and Stassen will visit each of these six nations, plus Britain, on their flying tour.

Stolen Auto Is Involved in Crash

An automobile reported stolen early today from New Paltz was later involved in an accident at Bloomville near Delhi, state police of Highland were informed.

Troopers said that Charles Randall, Jr., of RFD 1, New Paltz reported his automobile stolen some time between 1:30 and 3 a. m. today.

Gardiner Man Involved

The same vehicle later this morning was reported involved in an automobile accident in Delaware county, troopers said, and its operator was said to have been taken to a hospital in Stamford for treatment of a broken leg. Troopers at Highland said the driver had been identified as Arthur Davis, age unknown, of Gardiner, and revealed they were preparing to place a grand larceny charge against him.

Missing in Fire

Pusan, Jan. 31 (AP) — Eighteen Koreans were reported missing today in the wake of Pusan's most destructive fire. Authorities officially estimated the loss at 11 million dollars. The fire burned out one square mile in the heart of this war-jammed provisional capital and strategic port city. An estimated 1,500 stores and homes, most of them ramshackle frame structures, were razed.

Wonsan Hit Hard By Planes, Guns From Mighty Mo

Swarms of Planes Roar off Carriers in Big Attack on Once Great Port

Seoul, Jan. 31 (AP)—Planes from three U. S. carriers and the big guns of the battleship Missouri—the Mighty Mo—today dumped destruction on the northeast Korean port of Wonsan, already rubbled by the longest siege in American naval history.

The navy said that Vice Adm. James Clark, U. S. Seventh Fleet commander, planned and was watching the big attack from the Missouri.

Two destroyers joined the massive bombardment against the once-great east coast metropolis.

Swarms of planes were roaring off the decks of the big carriers Kearsarge, Oriskany and Philippine Sea in what the navy termed "vicious bombardment" and "an all-out aerial bombardment." By late afternoon, no details had been released.

The weather was clear. But a thin layer of ice coated the decks on the Mighty Mo.

Nine Below On Front

On the ground, Eighth Army Headquarters reported only scattered patrol skirmishes as the mercury dipped below zero for the second day over the 155-mile line. The western front was the coldest—nine below zero.

The air force reported five UN warplanes, including a B-29 Superfort bomber, were lost this week over North Korea as against six MIGs. A Superfort normally carries a crew of 11 men.

One F-86 Sabre jet was shot down in a dogfight with Communist MIGs, and enemy ground fire knocked down an F-80 Shooting Star jet. A Sabre and an Australian Meteor jet were lost to "other causes," probably mechanical trouble.

Starts at Sunrise

The Missouri opened the attack on Wonsan shortly after sunrise. The warship's secondary batteries laid down a protective fire to discourage Communist shore gunners in the harbor area. The navy said there was no answering fire.

Carrier planes then streaked over the port. The action is the first for the Philippine Sea since the carrier returned to Korean waters for its third tour of duty.

Rear Adm. Robert Hickey was aboard the Task Force 77 flagship, the carrier Kearsarge.

Largest Siege in History

The navy said the city of Wonsan has been in a state of siege since Feb. 16, 1951, making this "by far the longest effective siege in United States naval history." The siege of Vicksburg during the Civil War stands next on the list, the navy said.

Wonsan was described as a blackened mass, marked only by columns which formerly were the smokestacks of busy industrial plants, the navy said. The city, which once boasted a population of 100,000, grew into industrial importance because its harbor was ice-free throughout the year.

Tells About . . .

contradictory testimony of McQuade and McCormack.

ILA President Ryan, 68, insisted that waterfront crime is "greatly exaggerated" and that there is no more of it along the docks than elsewhere in New York.

While conceding that it is possible 30 per cent of his ILA officers have police records, Ryan said he was not aware of any wholesale infiltration of the ILA by hoodlums, gangsters and ex-convicts.

However, Ryan earlier had admitted that he was powerless to bring about the ouster in 1940 of mobsters who took over three Brooklyn ILA locals. The hoodlums allegedly were members of the notorious kill-for-hire gang, Murder, Inc.

Ryan also was questioned about $241,097 which the commission said he collected from various ILA sources in the five years ended last September. His regular ILA salary during that time was $100,000 of the total.

The ILA president said the figure included expenses of his fight on communism on the piers, a fight which he said was financed by donations from shipping firms.

A commission tabulation, put on the record, showed Ryan spent ILA money on such items as Cadillacs, $12,494; a cruise to Guatemala, $460; golf club dues and charges, $1,332; the burial of a sister-in-law, $478; and a Stork Club luncheon, $546.

Ryan said these items were paid for out of the anti-Communist fund, but he asserted that he later made good the expenditures out of his personal checking account.

Death of Woman

the Kingston city laboratory indicated that Harriet Martin was intoxicated, District Attorney St. John revealed. Vital organs have been sent to the state police laboratory for further analysis.

Highway workers found the dying woman lying in a ditch along the Granite road about 8:15 a. m. Wednesday. A shotgun was found some distance away, but examination of the body disclosed no marks of violence, state police reported.

Two Kingston veterans, Sgt. Donald P. Oulton, 149 West O'Reilly street and Pfc. George R. Hutter, 51 Harwick street, are due to arrive in Seattle, Wash., Sunday, the Associated Press reported this morning.

to run the Senate's main Red hunt.

Jenner said he already is at work on 10 lines of inquiry, and that "Communists in the army" will be one of them. He did not elaborate on this.

Jenner also is expected to lead an investigation of alleged Communist infiltration of U. S. members of the United Nations staff.

Waterfront Is Listed

Sen. Tobey (R.-N. H.), told the Senate he would use part of the $75,000 given his Commerce Committee for an investigation of organized interstate crime on the nation's waterfronts. His objective, he said, is to "clean these rats" of the underworld from ports in New York, New Jersey, Louisiana, California and elsewhere.

Tobey's committee also got permission to spend nearly $31,000 in completing investigations of the Interstate Commerce Commission and of transport and communications facilities.

Also voted was a total of more than $237,000 for investigations and studies of immigration problems, alleged waste in the defense effort, the alien property custodian's office, the economic controls law, banking, housing and related problems and government manpower.

SHIFT THIS WORRY . . . . .

Don't try to carry the load of financial risks against loss by fire, windstorm, theft, burglary, accidents, liability, suits, etc.

When you have a loss, you want the matter cleaned up in a jiffy, with a minimum of mental anguish to you. You want to shift the burden to broader shoulders than your own. Let us anticipate this possibility for you by writing the right policy to cover you against all such losses.

Your losses may be months or years away, but, meanwhile, insurance will give you mental peace that is worth far more than it costs you.
